To Prevent Floods
Let Her Marry
Almost Arrested
A Death Poem

— BY ARTHUR BRISBANE —

SEVERE floods in New England, destroying many lives and millions of property, sweeping away homes, mills and factories to shut down, will concentrate attention more strongly than ever on the flood control problem.

It is as much the duty of government to spend some of its superfluous billions to protect people from floods as it is to protect them in time of depression to send billions to war or preparation for war.

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN'S sister, Princess Victoria Schaumburg-Lippe, said she wants to marry a young Russian exile. Lutheran clergymen refuse to marry them, saying the difference in age makes it "unethical."

To please mankind in addition to those entitled to please themselves, the spirit alone counts as ethical. The spirit of 63 is younger and richer than thousands of others at 25.

Ask what about Sarah, whose husband, Abraham, was 100 years old when Isaac was born, and Sarah not so much younger? Do Lutherans lack faith in the twentieth century? Let them read the twenty-first chapter of Genesis.

ASSORTED news today, one item rather startling. The government actually talked about arresting a man worth a good many million dollars because somebody representing him seemed anxious to bribe a juror.

If it is all right to bribe a cabinet member, why make a fuss about bribing one juryman, especially when the case involves BIG stealing, the sort not usually punished?

The government realizes that dealing with "important" men, like walking on eggs, should be done cautiously. A warrant was issued for the "certain rich man," but the warrant was called back a half hour after it had been issued.

TWO women killed themselves yesterday. One, all dressed, swam out into a lake, increasing her pace to escape a man who tried to rescue her. She was drowned. Look for the man. Another put a pillow in the oven of her stove, turned on the gas and died after writing a poem headed, "Farewell to R. S." One verse read:

"A few short weeks of happiness,
A few short weeks of gladness,
And now my heart just aches and aches—
Just so full of sadness."

Just such poetry is no excuse for suicide. The poor girl, only 27 years old, could have found another "R. S."

JOHN SEYBOLD, 71, a farmer, wants back $7,500 paid a medium. Seybold talked to a spirit named "Sarah," liked Sarah's voice, paid for Sarah's wedding dress, at her request donated $500 for wayward girls. Then after he had spent $7,500 to please Sarah, on her promise to come to earth and marry him, "Sarah," says the farmer, "never showed up."

Do not laugh. This old farmer simply paid in advance for happiness to come later. Believers in some of many religions on earth, the false ones, are now doing the same and will be disappointed as Farmer Seybold was disappointed. Their disappointment will come hereafter.

THERE is talk of building another Westminster Abbey to hold corpses of immortal heroes, scientists, statesmen. The old Abbey is crowded, and Americans are expected to contribute to the new building. We ought to concentrate on raising a few immortals here. Besides, if the British will wait two or three hundred years, many immortals in the Abbey will no longer be immortal, and room will be available.

THE German fliers, Merz and Bock, in their Heinkel hydroplane, have sailed at the Azores on their way across the Atlantic to America. Good luck to them, their monoplane and their 500-horsepower motor. Going by the Azores, as Lindbergh points out, cuts the fuel weight by half. That will be the real road until the airplane is really developed.

PLATINUM has been found in Alaska, where one man makes $200 a day by primitive mining. That will start travel to what used to be called "Seward's Folly," because Seward paid $7,000,000 for it. Eight thousand million dollars would not buy it now and a hundred thousand millions dollars wouldn't pay what it is really worth.

THEY are digging up a tomb nearly 6000 years old, holding the body, and, what is more important, the treasures of King Zoser. He is the Pharaoh that built the famous step pramid. The diggers saw "the glint of metal" and will keep on digging.

THEY DIRECT HARDING HIGH ATHLETICS

THESE two men direct the destiny of athletics at Harding High School. They are Dewey Bohyer and Allen "Baldy" Compton. It's a two-way combination the Harding coaches work. Compton helps Bohyer get out a football team and when the snow flies and drives the athletes indoors Bohyer reciprocates by helping Compton with his basketball team.

It's a very neat combination and seems to be working well.

Both coaches wear big "W"s on their sweaters, which Ohio Wesleyan for Bohyer and Wittenberg for Compton. In June of 1922 Bohyer tripped up to the platform of the Ohio Wesleyan graduating ceremonies and received a diploma for acquiring knowledge and playing some basketball, football, and baseball for the alma mater. Some time later he tripped up to an altar with a bride. Compton has made but one trip, in 1926

RED CROSS IS PREPARED TO LAUNCH DRIVE

Annual Roll Call Scheduled To Open Wednesday, Nov. 9, Close Nov. 14

$10,000 SET AS GOAL

Corps of Workers One of Largest Ever Enlisted in Yearly Campaign

With an organization covering the entire county perfected and ready for work, all preparations have been completed for the annual Red Cross roll call campaign, which is scheduled to start Wednesday, Nov. 9 and close Monday, Nov. 14, George B. Knapp, roll call chairman, announced today.

The corps of workers is one of the largest ever enlisted in the annual Red Cross membership drive here and officers of the organization express confidence in prospects of attaining the goal of 2,500 members and subscriptions totalling $10,000 which has been set as the objective to be reached on or before Nov. 14.

This amount has been fixed as representing the needs of the Marion County Red Cross Chapter to carry out its program of community relief work during the next year. The goal was placed at $10,000 after the executive committee made a careful study of receipts and expenditures of the chapter during the last year and established an estimate of the demands that must be met during the coming year to carry on relief work in general, continue nursing service, assist in the free clinic and soldier's relief, continue nutrition work for underfed children in public and parochial schools, assist the Kiwanis fresh air camp next summer, help operate the free clinic, continue life saving work, and be prepared to render assistance to other communities in times of disaster.

Outlines Plans

The roll call organization and its program of work were outlined by Chairman Knapp today as follows:

All industrial concerns of the county are invited to make subscriptions by each company combining its contribution with subscriptions of the employes as far as possible. The campaign among the industrial concerns is in charge of John A. Schroeter and Fred B. Scheriff, who have already completed their plans of procedure.

The roll call solicitation in the commercial districts will be conducted by the Federation of Women's Clubs. This territory has been divided and subscription blanks are to be distributed to all stores and offices for collection on Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

An organization has been perfected in all communities outside the city of Marion with a leader selected in each district to have charge of collecting

AIR TRIP SHORT FOR NEWS WOMEN

Middletown, Nov. 5—Four Cincinnati newspaper women who attempted an airplane flight to Toledo for the Ohio Newspaper Women's Convention, completed the trip by railroad after their plane had been forced down near here late Friday.

Occupants of the plane were: Mrs. Mary Broadstreet, Anne Cutler, Ruth Neeley France, Miss Brown, and George Elliston, all of Cincinnati. The party encountered a storm near Dayton and decided to make a landing.

FIVE CARS ARE TAKEN IN CITY BY JOYRIDERS

Four Machines Recovered; Sedan Owned by R. E. Adams Still Missing

Joyriders are believed by the police to have been responsible for the disappearance of five automobiles from the city early last night. The fact that four of the five were found in various parts of the city this morning lends strength to the belief.

An Oakland sedan, the property of R. E. Adams, and which was taken from State-st near the Hotel Marion between 9 and 10 o'clock had not been found by the police at noon today.

The four cars which have been found are a Buick sedan belonging to Chester Roberts, Mt. Vernon-av and which was taken from near the Marion Club on S. Prospect-st; a Buick coach belonging to Earl Reasoner, which was taken from Center-st; a car belonging to A. E. Russell, Edwards-st, and a seven-passenger Hudson touring car belonging to Ben Blake, florist, which was taken between 8 and 10 o'clock last night.

The Roberts car was found by Marion Blessing, credit manager of the Butler store behind a clump of bushes near the Fairground-st entrance of Lincoln park. The car had been driven for some distance and suffered no serious damage other than a flat tire.

The Reasoner car was found by police on Silver-st. The car had been driven a number of miles but was undamaged. The Russell machine was found early this morning, and shortly before dinner the Blake car was found on Latourette-st. The car had been driven 85 miles, Mr. Blake said, but was not damaged.

Dayton Superintendent Presents Plan Before Ohio Teachers

Dayton, Nov. 5—Five thousand members of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association, meeting here today, were considering a proposal by Paul C. Stetson, superintendent of Dayton schools, that a law be enacted designed to eliminate friction between school boards and superintendents.

The remedy, according to Stetson, lies in a clearer definition of the duties of boards and superintendents. Prominent speakers on the program yesterday were: Dr. Edwin Slosson, Washington, D. C.; Dr. H. C. Morrison of the University of Chicago, and J. G. Collicott of Columbus.

NATION EYES OHIO VOTE ON JUSTICE BILL

Tuesday's Vote To Range Between 750,000 and 1,000,000, Say Officials

TWO MAJOR ISSUES

Chiropractors Seek Enactment of Law; Municipalities Also Elect

Columbus, Nov. 5—Nationwide interest attaches to the Ohio elections to be held next Tuesday. Buckeye state voters, on Nov. 8, will determine the fate of the Marshall Bill, ardently backed by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League. The measure, passed at the session of the Ohio Legislature last spring, was designed to provide legal compensation for village mayors, justices of the peace, marshals, constables and special assistants, in liquor cases.

The Marshall Bill was prevented from becoming effective as law when opponents of the measure launched a referendum campaign against it last summer. This campaign will end next Tuesday when Ohioans, at the polls, will decide whether the bill shall operate as a statute. A majority vote will determine the issue.

Ohio Dry State

Ohio has been regarded nationally as a "consistently dry" state. Anti-Saloon League officials and supporters, throughout this campaign, insisted that the wet-dry issue was involved in the Marshall Bill referendum. This was denied by prominent opponents of the bill.

One other state-wide issue will be voted upon in Ohio Tuesday. Under the initiative and referendum provisions of the Ohio constitution, chiropractors are seeking enactment at the polls of a law providing for appointment of a separate state board empowered to examine and license chiropractors, establishing educational requirements and providing penalties for illegal practice of chiropractic. A majority vote, also, will determine whether this bill will become a law.

750,000 Vote Forecast

Although no state or county officials will be chosen at the general election next Tuesday, thousands of local officers will be elected in the approximately 800 municipalities, 1400 townships and hundreds of school districts throughout the state.

State election officials today estimated that the votes to be cast throughout Ohio next Tuesday will range from 750,000 to approximately 1,000,000, depending upon the active interest taken in the rural districts in the Marshall Bill referendum.

BOARD PREPARES FOR TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Ballots and Other Supplies Assembled for Distribution; Final Registration Made

Final work in preparation for next Tuesday's election was in progress today at the office of the Marion County board of elections.

Ballots and other supplies to be distributed to the county's 72 voting precincts have been assembled and will be received by precinct officials today and Monday. More than 146,000 ballots were printed.

Final registration of voters will take place Monday from 4 P. M. to 8 P. M., when precinct officials will be on duty at all of the polling places. This registration is only for persons who were out of the city or ill on the regular registration days in October. Special permits must be obtained from the board of elections by persons registering Monday. The board will be in session today and Monday from 1 to 4 p. m. to issue permits.

Registration is required only for persons who are new voters or have moved from one precinct to another.

Voters will not be required to register because of the new alignment of wards recently established in the city, A. W. Kette, clerk of the board of elections, said today. Precinct boundaries are the same as last year, with one exception. A small section of S. Vine-st has been transferred to a new precinct and registration records have been adjusted by the board to take care of this change.

STATUE BACK ON COLLEGE GROUNDS

Washington, Nov. 5—Another indication that the World War is over was given today when Secretary of War Davis announced that the statue of Frederick The Great may be restored to its old place on the grounds of the Army War College here.

The statute was removed to the basement of the college administration building 10 years ago "to save it from possible desecration," according to Davis. Suggestions have reached the war department from several quarters to have it restored and these suggestions are now being carefully considered.

TEMPERATURE DROP BRINGS BRISK TRADE

Sales Increase in Practically All Lines as Winter Weather Arrives

Sweeping into the city yesterday with the snow and cold wind the anticipated increase in Christmas holiday business became noticeable in practically all lines of merchandising with record sales for the season and prospects of continued brisk trade.

The drop in temperature which brought many orders to coal dealers also resulted in a general revival in all lines, merchants reported today.

Business was better yesterday than it has been any day this season, is the report. While there had been a general improvement in trade during the last few weeks it took yesterday's wintry gesture to start the Christmas holiday buying in earnest.

Stocking Up

In anticipation of the release of $130,000 in Christmas savings accounts by local banks and building and loan associations, scheduled for Dec. 10, merchants have been stocking up with the best available goods consistent with economical buying.

That a greater part of this money will be spent during the pre-holiday season on not only Christmas and New Years gifts but on necessary wearing apparel is indicated from reports of the last few years. Record sales have been established in local stores as a direct result, merchants say, of the Christmas savings idea.

With 40 shopping days remaining until Christmas the purchasing of gifts has already started on a small scale. Merchants generally agree that the purchasing of gifts will grow gradually, climaxing with the sales made immediately following the release of Christmas savings funds.

According to local bankers and building and loan heads the Christmas savings idea is growing in popularity. This statement is borne out by records of increased accounts during the year. More persons are keeping up their accounts, bankers say.

AIR RECORD SEEKER DIES IN ATTEMPT

Body of Captain Gray Found in Balloon Basket in Tennessee

Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., Nov. 5—The attempt of Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, argonaut of the ethereal range, almost nine miles above the earth, to attain a new altitude record, has ended in his death, it was learned today when officers here received word that his body had been found in his balloon basket near Sparta, Tenn., by a farmer.

What happened to him since Captain Gray left here yesterday afternoon to soar into the sky will probably never be entirely known, but the fact that his body was found in his balloon basket indicates that he ascended to a great height to be overcome by the rarefied atmosphere.

WANT GOVERNMENT

Formal Request Presented to Coolidge by Porto Ricans

Washington, Nov. 5—A formal request from the people of Porto Rico to be granted self government by 100% was presented to President Coolidge today.

Horace M. Towner, ex-congressman from Iowa, and now governor of the islands, presented a memorial to the president signed by all the political parties, requesting him to recommend Porto Rican self-government in his forthcoming message to congress.

ONE KILLED, TWO BADLY HURT IN ACCIDENTS

Columbus, Nov. 5—After a check-up on the traffic accidents here last night it was found that one man was killed, two seriously injured, and 10 persons who received minor injuries, according to police reports today. Slippery streets and a driving rain was the cause of the unusually heavy traffic toll, police declare.

MONTPELIER IS WORST HIT BY HIGH WATERS

Bitter Cold Adds to Suffering of Victims Exposed to Elements

FIVE STATES IN PATH

All Traffic Paralyzed; Relief Trains Held Up by Washouts

Boston, Mass., Nov. 5—Two hundred reported dead in one community alone—property loss in excess of $50,000,000—5,000 families homeless and suffering bitterly from exposure—scores of towns and villages swept away or inundated to rooftops—and a dawn breaking over a biting cold, early New England winter day with flurries of snow and chill north winds heaping suffering on the thousands of refugees.

This was the grim picture that came out of Vermont, New Hampshire, and parts of Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut today.

Dams already smashed before mounting walls of water, trapping and crushing entire towns, more reservoirs expected to go momentarily, streams and rivers far out of their banks and rushing on hourly to new high levels.

Traffic Paralyzed

This marks a few of the scattered bits of information that came out of the completely isolated sections early today while all systems of communication and traffic were completely paralyzed.

More than 200 have perished beneath the tremendous sweep of flood waters tumbling down on Montpelier capital of Vermont, it was reported in unconfirmed dispatches.

With the horrible toll taken there, nine including Lieut. Gov. A. S. Jackson have perished at Barre, Vt., and more than a score of others have died beneath madly whirling flood waters elsewhere in New England.

Untold millions of dollars in damages to hundreds of towns, bridges and cities has been done.

Town Abandoned

The 5,000 homeless families, are menaced with starvation and death from exposure as the driving rains have turned in many instances to equally driving snow storms and cold settles on the region afflicted.

A score of towns have been abandoned to the flood while thousands seek the safety of the hills. General crippling of the milling industries of the New England states and absolute halting of all traffic both by rail and road except on the south shore has resulted from the terrific rainfall and resultant floods.

The reports from Montpelier, where the greatest loss of life is feared were very meager. All efforts to get in touch with any point within 50 miles of Montpelier failed. Telegraph agents, telephone companies and newspapers vainly sought to get word through to or from the capital.

Entire Village Lost

White River Junction, 56 miles from the city was the source of the report that from 187 to 212 had perished as a huge reservoir above the city burst through its banks and sent a great wall of water sweeping all before it down on the city.

No official word has emanated from it since Thursday night, at 9 o'clock, Burlington, which re-established communications with the outside world by sending steamers across Lake Champlain for unattested points reported it had received word of "great loss of life" in Montpelier.

The entire village of Bethel in the western part of Massachusetts was wiped off the earth when a dam burst releasing millions of gallons of water on the village. One died while the toll

COOLIDGE PLANE TO SURVEY FLOOD

Washington, Nov. 5—A reconnaissance of the flooded areas in New England states by army airplanes was ordered today by President Coolidge.

Mr. Coolidge's home county is reported badly hit by the flood and he and Attorney General Sargent are keenly concerned because they have been unable to get any word from friends and relatives in the state.

TO BAR PUBLIC

All Seats at Lillienthal Trial for Reporters and Witnesses

MASON CITY, Ia., Nov. 5—The public will be barred from the Lillienthal murder trial which starts here Nov. 28, Prosecutor Louis R. Repetto of Atlantic County announced today.

"All seats will be taken up by witnesses and newspapermen," the prosecutor said, "and it will be useless for the public to storm the courthouse, as the building will be patrolled by police and special officers."

The trial, Repetto said, will probably last three weeks, adding that more than 100 witnesses will probably be called. The state has 87 witnesses, he said, and the defense about 90.

HEAVY SEAS SMASH LINER'S LIFEBOATS

Storm That Follows Vessel Characterized as "Most Severe Blow"

New York, Nov. 5—With two of her forward lifeboats smashed by heavy seas and her companionway carried away in the height of a storm last Saturday, the United States Liner George Washington was docked at Hoboken today with 1102 passengers aboard from Cherbourg, Bremen and Southhampton.

The storm, which followed the vessel almost all the way across the Atlantic, was characterized by Capt. Harold A. Cunningham as one of the "most severe blows" in several years. Many of the passengers suffered, he said.

Aboard the George Washington was Mrs. Lily Busch, widow of the late Adolphus Busch, one of the founders of the Anheuser-Busch Co. Mrs. Busch, who suffered a severe nervous breakdown abroad, has recovered almost entirely, according to her secretary. She will remain here a few days before going to her home in St. Louise.

STATE TO THWART ANY MOVE TO FREE LENGEL

Canton, Nov. 5—Preparations were being made here today by the state to thwart any attempt of defense counsel to secure release of Seranus A. Lengel, former police chief of Canton, who is awaiting a new trial, in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

As a result of the finding of the Youngstown District Court of Appeals yesterday, reversing the conviction of Lengel and granting him a new trial, it is believed that the ex-chief will seek to be admitted to bail. The appellate court's finding of insufficient evidence to warrant a first degree verdict against Lengel might permit his release on bond.

Hundreds of Quilts And Coverlets, Representing Years of Work, on Display

Rare Old Bedspreads of Many Colors and Designs Being Exhibited at Star Auditorium as Benefit for Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp

Hundreds of exhibits, no two alike and each one a beautiful example of its particular kind, make up a unique display at the quilt and coverlet exhibition being held by the Kiwanis Club in the Star Auditorium which opened yesterday and will close tonight.

The exhibition opened with six tables, extending nearly the length of the hall, carrying exhibits of quilts, coverlets and bed spreads. It is perhaps the most complete that has ever been shown in this city. Music last night was furnished by the Harding High School orchestra. This afternoon and tonight St. Mary's orchestra and trio will furnish the musical part of the program.

Even though the average person may not be interested in quilts, coverlets and spreads, the kaleidoscopic colors and designs make the exhibitions one of beauty and interest.

Perhaps the most unusual quilt in the exhibition is that owned by Mrs. Rose M. Eby, S. State-st, which contains 11,000 small blocks all neatly sewed together. Another, pieced and quilted by Eli Cogill, an invalid, in 1830, is the center of much interest.

A white quilt with tulips in blue, according to the information attached to it, was pieced and quilted in Scotland. 117 years ago by Jane Wallace Carson, five years of age. The quilt is now the property of Mrs. Joe Mason, E. Center-st, a daughter of the maker.

A beautiful coverlet of gold and black in a conventional design, woven by James Simeon Hiett, in 1803 from wool taken from his own sheep, and carded, and reeled, by himself. The coverlet is the property of Gilmore Hiett, Waples-av. A spread quilted in a fish pattern, also is the property of Mr. Hiett.

What is perhaps the most striking quilt is the property of Margaret N. Dickerson which was presented to her by an aged woman in Washington. A large sunburst made up of hundreds of diamond shape pieces of red, blue and yellow, occupy the center of the piece while each corner contains a design in white and blue.

It is expected the judging of the various pieces will take place this afternoon when the 40 prizes donated by the various merchants will be awarded. Dr. Stengel, president of the Kiwanis Club and through whose efforts the exhibition is being held, said last night that judges from out of the city had been obtained.

Proceeds of the exhibition will be used to help finance the fresh air camp next summer.

LINDY DOWN TWICE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Second Hop Cut Short by Snowstorm; Major Lamphier with Him

Montrose, Pa., Nov. 5—Flying into the face of a snowstorm, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was again forced down in his plane shortly after he took off from St. Joseph, Pa., near here, today.

Colonel Lindbergh was able to go only a few miles when the snow storm forced him back. He said he would try again to continue his way to Buffalo this afternoon if the storm abated. If not he will spend the night either here or in Binghamton, N. Y., nearby.

Colonel Lindbergh was first forced down at St. Joseph last night.

Colonel Lindbergh was followed by Maj. Thomas G. Lamphier, who landed his plane when Lindbergh was forced down.

TWO ARE KILLED

Toledo, Nov. 5—Two persons are dead here today as the result of traffic accidents last night. Harry A. Schmuhl, Jr., 5, was killed when he stumbled and fell into the path of an auto while crossing the street and Martin Brezinski, 62, was hit as he stepped from behind a parked machine.

Spell? Yes, You Can! Look What These Marionites Did on Mason's Prize List

ABILITY to spell correctly and readily is largely a natural gift and can not be acquired by many persons regardless of how extensive may be their education.

But there are words that baffle even the most skillful of those who are entitled to be classed as extraordinarily "good spellers."

This was clearly shown at the meeting of Marion Lodge of Elks, Thursday night, when six members of the organization [illegible] themselves out on a list of 10 words submitted to them by L. Don Jones, former exalted ruler of the lodge.

The contestants were T. A. O'Leary, clerk of the board of county commissioners, Frank Wiedemann, prosecuting attorney, Carter M. Patton, assistant city solicitor, Cecil R. Leavens, county surveyor, R. E. Prettyman, city councilman and V. M. Durbin, assistant county surveyor.

To all appearances none was a group of [illegible] when they started off the list.

Yet when they tackled this list of 10 puzzlers, they registered a score of—well, let's not discuss the point in detail. It's a huge secret and besides, those six well-known citizens might be embarrassed by having the opinions of the contest judge spoiled.

It can be said to their credit at any rate, that they did as well as the average person—and many of them have been [illegible]

INJUNCTION ACTION CUTS COST OF ROAD

Contract for Construction of Likens-Pole Lane-rd Let on $19,173.26 Bid

When two property owners filed an injunction suit here several weeks ago and temporarily halted plans for improvement of the Likens-Pole Lane-rd in the eastern part of Marion County, they reduced the cost of the improvement more than $1,000.

That was not the purpose of their court action but nevertheless it worked out that way.

Yesterday the board of county commissioners awarded the contract for construction of the road at $19,173.26, which was $1,395.12 below the lowest bid received on Sept. 25, when letting of the contract was stopped at the last minute by the temporary injunction.

The contract went to Brady & O'Connell, local contracting firm. The improvement, one of the largest county road projects planned this year, will be 4.02 miles in length, extending through sections of Marion, Grand Prairie, Scott and Claridon Townships. The engineer's preliminary estimate of the cost was $20,005.00, almost $9,000 above the contract price.

Type of Construction

The road is to be constructed of rolled macadam, 12 feet in width with right-of-way 22 feet wide. Although the contract stipulates that the work is to be started on or before May 1 and completed by Sept. 1 of next year, the contracting firm indicated that it may get the project under way at once and have it at least partially completed before the end of this year.

The suit protesting against plans for the improvement was brought by the two property owners who asserted that land was being appropriated for widening the road without providing adequate compensation. A temporary injunction was granted by Judge Scofield on Sept. 25, the date set for the contract letting, which was halted by notice of the injunction about an hour previous to the time set for opening bids.

Injunction Dissolved

The temporary injunction was later dissolved at a hearing before Judge Scofield and the commissioners advertised for new bids to be opened yesterday.

The lowest bid received on Sept. 25, when the injunction was served, was $20,478.88. Had the court order not stopped proceedings, the contract would have been let at that figure.

The list of bids received at yesterday's letting was as follows:

Brady & O'Connell, Marion, $19,173.76; Ideal Construction Co., Upper Sandusky, $23,706.64; C. E. Hildebrand, Bucyrus, $19,777.54; C. F. Schwab, Sulphur Springs, $20,476.88; Peter Shingledecker, Van Wert, $20,192.25; Edwards Construction Co., Sunbury, $20,799.04; Anstine & Carey, Kenton, $21,342.78; J. M. Hamilton, Marion, R. F. D., $19,370.74; S. M. Wooley, Marion, $19,935.23.

"I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this legion of mercy"

—a message to YOU from—

Calvin Coolidge

FROM the White House, President Coolidge has issued an urgent appeal to every citizen of the United States. He says:

"The American Red Cross has a foremost place in the ranks of distinctive American institutions which we honor and loyally support. It has become an intimate part of our every day life. To it we turn instinctively and confidently when sudden calamities occur.

"We have had frequent occasions to witness its readiness for instant and effective response at the call to duty.

"We have tested the Red Cross in war and in peace. It has never failed us. It never will so long as it holds your support.

"As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this legion of mercy."

—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

The Red Cross has never failed. And, as President Coolidge says, "it never will as long as it holds your support."

But the Red Cross must have constant support to carry out the work described below. Read the many activities of this great legion of mercy. Can you think of a better way to spend a dollar?

In earthquake, tornado, explosion—in every form of human disaster

In the past 46 years, the American Red Cross has expended $59,859,237 for relief work, following disasters. During the current year in this country it has directed or participated in relief work in 75 catastrophes.

Service to Disabled Veterans of World War and to Men of the Army and Navy

Since the Armistice it has expended $62,388,978 for services to the disabled veterans of the World War and to the men of the regular Army and Navy. It is now assisting an average of more than 73,000 disabled veterans and their families each month.

To more than 225,000 soldiers, sailors and marines on active duty it continues to give the same supplementary volunteer relief and Home Service it gave during the World War.

In Other Lands

Abroad it represents the American people in works of mercy when great catastrophes cause abnormal suffering. It was the agent of America in extending relief to victims of 20 disasters in foreign lands during the past year.

Nurse Reserve

It maintains an enrolled reserve of more than 44,000 nurses available in emergency to Army, Navy, U. S. Public Health Service and Veterans' Bureau, and for service in epidemics.

Public Health Nursing

Within the year an average of 806 Red Cross public health nurses have aided in the care of the sick, guarded the health of children and fostered understanding of personal and community hygiene.

Home Hygiene

67,000 women and girls have completed courses in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick under Red Cross direction the past year. More than 489,000 have received this instruction since the activity was initiated.

Nutrition

Through its Nutrition Service it helps promote individual and community health by teaching the principles of a sound nutrition; 115,000 children and 12,000 adults have been taught the importance of proper use of foods the past year.

Life Saving and First Aid

More than 31,000 men, women and youths have received training in effective methods of rescuing and reviving the drowning; 19,000 completed the Red Cross course in first aid during the year.

Family Work

In 505 communities the Red Cross chapter is the only family welfare agency.

American Junior Red Cross

In the Junior Red Cross more than 5,000,000 enrolled school children are learning the value of service to others. With the children of 40 other countries they are creating bonds of friendship and understanding.

If you believe in helping humanity, you believe in the Red Cross. 5,000,000 Members are necessary if the needs shall be met. Renew your membership now!

GATE CRASHING NOW ART AMONG YOUTHS

Strategy and Wits Brought into Play To Elude Ticket Takers

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Nov. 5—"One-Eyed" Connally, the internationally-famed gate crasher, has more than one protege at Ohio State University.

Since the gridiron games in which Ohio State University eleven has taken part, have been attracting crowds greater than the stadiums where the games are played, gate-crashing has become an art with the "ticketless" student at the Buckeye School.

But while the one-eyed gentleman is known to gain his entrance in the various stadiums by awaiting an opportunity and by sheer force, the Ohio State "crasher" has delved deeper into the art and is now using strategy and wits to get by gatemen when tickets are not available.

Michigan Game

At Michigan a few weeks ago, there were many and varied tricks employed by Scarlet and Gray rooters to get inside of that stadium when the Buckeyes tackled the Wolverines.

So anxious were one co-ed and her boy friend giving their residences as Ohio, to get by the gatemen, that they posed as the "daughter" of President George W. Rightmire and the "nephew" of Dr. J. W. Wilce, Ohio's mentor.

The "nephew" possessed with a remarkable silvery tongue, rasped a message of despair to the gatemen about the loss of their tickets and after a 15-minute argument finally succeeded in getting inside of the huge structure. Once on the Ohio cheering side, the two had no trouble in finding seats on the 45-yard line.

Several new members were added at the last moment to the Ohio band when it passed the gate into the stadium. When the musicians arrived at the field, several of the "unfortunates" who were standing idly by awaiting a chance, grabbed drums and instrument cases and marched in with the organization.

Many Ohio youths were also among the number of "crashers" who forced their way by the gatemen and eluded policemen in the crowd to take a seat in the front row on the 50-yard line.

BUCKEYE FAN GIVES MEN TIGER CRACKERS

Hopes Team May Trample on Princeton Like They Munch Edible

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Nov. 5—Chris Pappas, owner of a restaurant located near the Ohio State University campus, believes that he has devised a plan which will give the Buckeye eleven good luck on their eastern journey, this Saturday.

Thursday night when the Scarlet and Gray squad departed amidst the cheers of many thousand of Ohio rooters, Chris handed each of the squad a set of 11 Tiger animal crackers. The donor one of Ohio's most ardent fans, hopes that while the Buckeye team is munching the crackers, it will decide to do the same with the Princeton Tiger eleven, Saturday afternoon.

For many years Pappas has handed each of the players an apple before he departed for the out-of-town games, but decided to discontinue that practice after the game with Michigan.

Chris journeyed to Ann Arbor to see the game and declared on his return that the apples he passed out to the team, gave it "apple-plexy."

The Holy Church-

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. G. A. KANZLER
Pastor, Salem Evangelical Church

WHY is the Christian church called a Holy Church?

Ephesians 5:25-27:—"Christ loved the church and gave Himself up for it, that He might sanctify it, having cleansed it by the washing of water with the word, that He might present the church to Himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish."

This passage of Scripture furnishes an argument and the question: "Is the church a holy church?" We do confess that the church is a holy church, but we must acknowledge at the same time that the church has existed at all times as the true church; but has frequently erred and been corrupted; Its future perfection, however, is certain, according to God's promise. Yes, today so imperfect, so wretched, so unholy—but tomorrow so perfect, so happy, so holy. From human sinfulness to saintly goodness, this is the process through which the souls of men must pass to holiness.

Sanctification is possible only where confession of sin, contrition for sin and longing for grace takes place. This does take place in the church and through the working of the Holy Spirit. Then we must submit this answer to the question about the church being called a holy church. The Christian church is called holy, because the Holy Ghost works mightily in it by word and sacrament, and because every one of its members shall thereby be sanctified and made holy.

A holy church? Yes, the church of Jesus Christ is a holy institution. It is better than any other organization. Yes the very best place we have on earth. Saints meet there, sinners meet there, yes we meet each other there and we meet our Savior there, because the church is holy, holy, holy.

Do you still doubt the church? Surely then you have never been in a church. You are a member of the church and doubt that the church is holy? You have yet to learn how to subject yourself to the influence of the Holy Spirit. Come, join the communion of saints of the holy church, and then you shall be made holy as your Father in heaven is holy, holy, holy.

A MARION CHILD IS RELIEVED OF LONG SUFFERING

Local Lady Tells How The New Konjola Compound Benefited Her Daughter

"I am so highly thankful for the great relief Konjola brought to our seven-year old child that I will not only make a public indorsement of this wonderful medicine, but I will also tell my neighbors and friends how much I think of this splendid preparation of yours."

MARY CATHERINE MARTIN
AGE 7

This remarkable statement about the celebrated new Konjola compound was made a few days ago by Mrs. H. E. Martin, well-known Marion lady, living at 504 Pearl Street, this city, while talking with The Konjola Man at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, this city, where crowds of people call throughout each day to find out for themselves about this surprising medical preparation that has recently astounded drug men and general public alike in this entire section.

"For several months our little girl's health had been a constant worry to us," continued Mrs. Martin. "She wouldn't eat, was restless at nights and losing weight and dwindling away. She wouldn't play like other children and just seemed to be in a stupor all the time. We gave her nearly everything recommended to us, and were informed by best authorities that it would take a long time to get her back to health again, as she was all rundown.

"I decided to have her take Konjola, and while she has taken it only two weeks, I can truthfully say she is the picture of health. I think I must be the happiest woman in the city now. I notice that my daughter's cheeks are getting pink color in them and her eyes actually sparkle with life. She is hungry all the time, and sleeps fine at nights.

"Konjola has done more for my child than any medicine we tried. It relieved her of long suffering, and we want you to know how grateful we really are for this splendid medicine. We will always recommend it."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Adv.

London Newspaper Asserts Roumanian Premier Fears They'll Join Carol

London, Nov. 5—Queen Marie of Roumania and Princess Helen, mother of King Michael, are being kept virtual prisoners at Bucharest, Premier Bratianu and others of his government fearing they might leave to join Prince Carol in a move to overthrow the present Roumania regime, a dispatch to the Daily Mail from its Sofia correspondent said today.

The correspondent quotes uncensored dispatches from Bucharest as the source of the news.

The Sofia dispatch also states that Premier Bratianu is attempting to discredit members of the royal family, allowing offensive caricatures of Queen Marie to the published in the newspapers and giving widespread publicity to a pamphlet representing Prince Carol in the worst possible light.

Played at Wesleyan

Bohyer played the cage game at Wesleyan for three years and for two years was All-Ohio Conference forward. He also played football but early injuries prevented him from continuing in this sport. He played baseball three years and in his senior year was captain of the Bishops team.

In 1924 Bohyer took a coaching course under Rockne of Notre Dame, and Meanwell, nationally-known basketball coach. Last summer Bohyer studied under Warner of Leland Stanford and Allen, basketball coach of the University of Kansas.

Has Record

"Baldy" Compton has an Ohio Conference record that many may shoot at but never reach. For two years in succession he received All-Ohio honors in two sports, at end on the Lutheran football team and guard on the basketball team.

Last year was Compton's first year as a coach and the record his team made last March at the Delaware high school basketball tournament speaks for itself.

Basketball as it is played in the Western Conference was taught Compton last summer by Glen Thistlewaite, head coach at Wisconsin University.

Before coming to Marion Bohyer taught and coached at London High School.

This organization, regarded as one of the strongest and most complete ever effected in a roll call campaign in territory outside the city of Marion, was formed under supervision of Miss Mina Doughy, executive secretary of the Marion County Chapter.

Arrangements have been made to have a letter delivered to every home in the city of Marion on Friday, Nov. 11, explaining the purpose of the roll call and the work of the Red Cross. Each letter will be accompanied by a roll call subscription blank.

To Visit All Homes

On Sunday, Nov. 13, a corps of workers will visit all homes of the city to collect the subscriptions. This collection will start at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Six local organizations have been assigned to have charge of this work by wards, as follows:

First ward, King's Daughters; second ward, Marion Council, Knights of Columbus; third ward, Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias; fourth ward, Marion Lodge No. 402, Knights of Pythias; fifth ward, Buckeye Aerie No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles; sixth ward, Marion Lodge, No. 32, B. P. O. Elks.

Should any homes be missed in the collection or families be absent on the day of the roll call, their subscriptions may be deposited at any bank in the county. The subscriptions will then be turned over to the Red Cross chapter and receipts mailed to the subscribers.

The minimum membership fee is $1 and the Red Cross officers expect that the large majority of subscriptions will be of that amount.

TWO MEN ENTER GUILTY PLEAS IN LOCAL COURT

J. R. Uncapher and George Dobbins were arraigned before Judge Martin in municipal court this morning on charges of intoxication. They were arrested on Fairground-st early last night and upon their pleas of guilty, Uncapher was given a fine of $10 and costs and Dobbins, because of it being his second appearance in court on a similar charge, was fined $20 and costs. Both men paid and were released.

testing their spelling ability with the same list of words.

It is admittedly a "trick list," made for the sole purpose of proving that the English language is deceptive in many ways and that even college professors and others presumed to border on educational perfection can never be sure of themselves.

Here is the list, correctly spelled:

Kimono.
Supersede.
Naphtha.
Battalion.
Rarefy.
Liquefy.
Sacrilegious.
Paraffine—(also spelled paraffin.)
Tranquillity.
Picnicking.

They look easy but actually are just to the contrary. For proof of this, try the test out on a few of your well-educated friends.

The list of 10 words came originally from Jesse H. Mason, superintendent of schools, it was reported at the Elks' Lodge meeting. The school superintendent, so the story goes, took part in a spelling contest held on board the ship which took him to Europe last summer on his trip as delegate to the International Rotary Convention. Finding that the words "stumped" contestants on board the boat, the Marion school official made a record of the list to try out the skill of his acquaintances back home.

MUNICIPAL COURT TO BE CLOSED ALL DAY MONDAY

The municipal court will be closed all day Monday, it was announced by Municipal Judge William R. Martin this morning, as a mark of respect to Joseph H. Cahill who death occurred last night. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon. Mr. Cahill's daughter, Madeline, is deputy clerk of the court.

CONTINUE HEARING OF RISCH DOG CASE

Mrs. Elizabeth Snyder Confined at Hospital, Unable To Appear in Court

The case of W. H. Risch., whose dog is said to have been responsible for serious injuries received by Mrs. Elizabeth Snyder on Oct. 29, and which was scheduled for hearing in municipal court this morning, was continued indefinitely by Judge Martin when it was stated by Police Prosecutor Carter Patten, that Mrs. Snyder was still in the hospital and that the date of her appearance in court would be uncertain.

A formal plea of not guilty was made by Risch to a charge of harboring a vicious dog and he was released on his own recognizance for his appearance in court when wanted.

Mrs. Snyder, who is 66 years of age, was injured when she fell while trying to escape from an airedale dog belonging to Risch. Her left knee was crushed, the bones in her right wrist broken and her nose was crushed in the fall. She was taken to the City Hospital.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT LODGE MEETING

James A. Knapp Chosen for 43rd Year of Service as Secretary

Annual election of officers was held by Marion Lodge No. 70, F. and A. M., at the Masonic Temple last night, David E. Montgomery being chosen as worshipful master and James A. Knapp being re-elected to serve his forty-third year as secretary.

The election marked another milestone in the unusual record of Mr. Knapp as an officer of the local Masonic lodge, which covers a continuous period dating back to 1876. His term of service ranks as one of the longest in Masonic circles throughout the country.

After filling his first official station in 1876, he advanced to the post of worshipful master in 1882 and served in that capacity three years. In 1885 he was elected secretary and since then has filled that office continuously.

Other officers elected at last night's meeting are as follows:

Russell A. McEvoy, senior warden; John E. Davis, junior warden; Charles D. Schaffner, treasurer; Clarence L. Price, senior deacon; George E. Waddell, junior deacon; Anson E. Pickerel, senior steward; Paul A. Mickley, junior steward; William A. Tracy, tyler; James E. Messenger, trustee for three years; James A. Knapp, director of Marion Masonic Relief Association, two years.

Installation ceremonies will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 27, which is the date of the Festival of St. John, an event observed annually by all Masonic Lodges. The present worshipful master is Roy H. Waddell, who will complete his term with installation of the new officers.

Next Friday night the lodge will hold a special communication to confer the entered apprentice and fellowcraft degrees and on Nov. 25 the master mason degree will be conferred.

Annual election of officers will be held by Marion Chapter No. 62, R. and S. M., next Tuesday night.

POISON CANDY CALLED TYPICAL REMUS BUNK

Cincinnati, Nov. 5—"Typical Remus bunk," declared Hamilton County Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, 2nd, here today when informed of the alleged attempt to poison George Remus by sending him poisoned candy through the mails. Remus, erstwhile "bootleg king," is held in the county jail here for trial Nov. 14, for the first degree murder of his estranged wife, Augusta Imogene Holmes Remus.

The alleged plot to poison Remus came to light at the county jail late Friday when Remus received a box of marshmallows through the mails. The box was postmarked "New York." After tasting the candy, Remus declared it had been poisoned.

RULING IS RECEIVED ON APPEAL ACTION

Court at Lima Dismisses Motion in Suit Over Grade Crossing

Rulings were received here yesterday from the district court of appeals, sustaining the Marion County common pleas court in one case, overruling it in another, and deciding a technical point involved in a third proceeding.

The appellate tribunal dismissed the appeal, action which has been filed in the suit of the Marion County Commissioners against the C., D. & M. Electric Co., which involves a controversy over establishing a grade crossing for extension of the White Oaks-rd south to the Prospect-pk. The case was presented both on appeal and a petition-in-error, leaving the court to decide which procedure was correct.

As a consequence of the court's ruling the case will be finally decided on the petition in error. The court held that it could not be considered on the basis of an appeal.

The appellate tribunal's final decision is expected in the near future. In the court of common pleas, Judge Scofield granted the county permission to construct the grade crossing.

The common pleas court was sustained in the suit of L. L. Aller against W. C. Wooley and others, an action in which the plaintiff sued for a reduction of the price of stone furnished to him by John D. Owens & Son while he was constructing a county road near Prospect. He alleged that sufficient allowance were not made by the Owens firm for the weight of trucks used to transport the stone.

The sum of $1,330.22, representing the final estimate on the road job, was held in the county treasury pending decision of the case. In the common pleas court, the Owens firm was allowed $3,129.96 and Aller the balance after each paid equal shares of the court costs.

Aller took the case to the court of appeals, asking for an additional five per cent deduction. This plea was denied by the appellate judges.

Decision of the common pleas court was reversed in the suit of Marion Shaull, administrator of the estate of Nathan Ranck against Harvey W. Zachman and the case was remanded back for trial. In this action the administrator asked damages for an accident which resulted in Ranck's death. The suit was originally brought against the firm of Ridenour & Zachman and later when it was found that Ridenour was no longer in the firm, an amended petition was filed against Zachman. A demurrer against this action, claiming that it was not in accordance with law, was sustained in the court of common pleas. As a result of this decision being reversed, the case will go on trial with Zachman as the defendant.

PAPERS ISSUED TO AMUSEMENT FIRM

Nominal Sum Announced by Company in Meeting Legal Requirement

Incorporation papers were issued at the secretary of state's office in Columbus, to the Young Amusement Co., which plans to build and operate a theater at the corner of W. Center and Campbell-sts.

The company is incorporated for $25,000. This is merely a nominal sum which represents only a small fraction of the amount of money to be invested in the theater enterprise, R. T. Lewis, local representative of the company, stated today. He says that the building and site will cost approximately $500,000.

The incorporation proceeding is a legal formality required for operation of the Marion theater, Mr. Lewis said. The Young Amusement Co. has its main offices in Gary, Ind., and operates theaters there and at Canton, O.

V. U. Young, president of the company, was here today discussing plans for the theater building with his local representatives.

Incorporators of the local theater company are Mr. Young, Charles Silep and H. M. Shearing.

HERBERT'S CHARGES DENIED BY M'DONALD

Replies to Accusations Made by State Senator on Dry Enforcement

Columbus, Nov. 5—Denying all accusations, E. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner, today replied to a letter sent him by State Senator Paul M. Herbert, Columbus, late Friday. In his letter, Herbert renewed his attack upon alleged irregularities by Ohio Anti-Saloon League officials, and by officers and employes of the Ohio Prohibition Department.

In an open letter, addressed to McDonald, a few days ago, Herbert declared his intention of demanding a probe by the Ohio Legislature of alleged misconduct on the part of state dry officials and agents and by Anti-Saloon League officers in connection with dry law enforcement.

Herbert also accused McDonald of prohibiting employes of his department from discussing the alleged irregularities. Herbert asked McDonald whether he "fixed" the case of D. C. Stephenson, former klan dragon of Indiana, when a number of men, one of them alleged to be Stephenson, were arrested in a local hotel three years ago for creating a disturbance.

Herbert said that, although a dozen bottles of beer were found in the rooms occupied by these men none of them was "prosecuted, or brought to justice."

"I have your letter in which you accuse my inspectors of having raided one D. C. Stephenson and others in a room at the Desbler Hotel," McDonald wrote Herbert today. "My department had no connection with this raid and, if it had the case would not have been dropped. Your other charges of misconduct against this department in both your letters are just as untruthful as your version of the Stephenson incident.

Fights for Life

Rutland, Vermont, is fighting for its very life. While thousands are seeking safety in the hills, other thousands are frantically piling gravel at the great Chittenden Dam above the city. The dam is a huge one and the millions tons of water, if released by bursting of the dam will sweep a path a mile wide down through the heart of the city.

North Walpole, across the river from Bellows Falls, Vermont, is under 20 feet of water. Ludlow, home of Attorney General Sargent, has been abandoned. Middlebury, seat of Middlebury College, is threatened with destruction and the inhabitants have fled to the hills.

The White River which empties into the Connecticut rose 30 feet in 24 hours and the crest of the flood, adding another eight feet, is sweeping down on Bellows Falls, already inundated. A million pounds of freight have been moved on to the great railroad bridge there to keep it from being swept down the river.

100 Bridges Destroyed

More than 100 bridges throughout the four stricken states have been destroyed by the battering of the currents.

A landslide at Crawford Notch, famous summer resort, sent half a mountain tumbling down onto the railroad tracks, burying a passing freight train.

Literally thousands were saved from drowning by heroic rescue work of men who dared the swift currents in small boats to pull marooned families from roof tops and trees.

The milk supply of New England is destroyed as more than 20,000 cattle in the valleys which supply the larger cities have been killed.

The last report from Montpelier, in a phone call to Burlington Thursday night said the city was under 20 feet of water and that there was no drinking water and no food supplies. An urgent call for small boats was sent out by the mayor. No one has been able to make it through to the city since.

Relief Trains Halted

Relief trains organized and ready for work in the devastated districts of western Massachusetts and Vermont are unable to move because of more than a hundred miles of track washed out in various places, and bridges hurled into streams. Truck caravans are seeking to get through to the isolated districts, but are handicapped by roads made impassable by streams cutting new channels across them and sweeping out bridges.

It will be weeks before the total extent of the disaster, the worst ever experienced in New England is known.

SPRINGFIELD FACES SERIOUS SITUATION

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 5—Leaving a stricken and paralyzed Vermont in its wake, a great wall of water swept down the mighty Connecticut River today menacing the north end manufacturing and residential section of Springfield.

Waters of the Connecticut, unleashed by breaking dams at St. Johnsbury and elsewhere, rose with alarming rapidity and the fate of Springfield's industrial north end hinged on a dike on the river bank. Thousands were warned to be ready to leave their homes or workshops at a moment's notice when water seeped around the dike. Forty factories were in the danger zone.

Enormous damage was done in the business district by water backing up in the sewer drains.

PENNILESS FAMILY CONTINUES ON WAY

Generosity of Local Organizations and Individuals Furnishes Trio Transporation

Mr. and Mrs. George Schirles and their four months-old babe, who had "thumbed" their way from Benton Harbor, Mich., to this city and whose plight was discovered in the office of the Marion Auto Club at the Harding Hotel Thursday morning, continued on their way to their home in Staten Island, N. Y., last night. Instead of "thumbing" their way, they rode on the soft cushions of a Pullman sleeper.

Following discovery of their penniless condition by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher and Miss Catherine Schroeter of the Auto Club, the family was taken to the county home by Relief Commissioner Tobia and James Eymon, attorney for the Humane Society, until arrangements could be made to send them on.

Later they were taken to the home of Fred Upton, Davids-st, where they remained until last night when they left for their home. An appeal for help for the family made by Mrs. Upton and others, resulted in enough money being collected in a short time to pay their way with some left over. A half-fare rate was secured through the efforts of the Red Cross. The Eagles' Lodge also contributed toward the relief of the family.

RUTH, HALDEMAN BID FAREWELL TO PARIS

Girl Flier Sails as "Mrs. Womack;" Has Plenty of Baggage

Paris, Nov. 5—With the praise and good wishes of all Paris to bid them farewell, Ruth Elder and George Haldeman boarded the Aquitania today on their way back to the United States.

Both were a little paler and thinner than when they left New York on their adventurous trip which eventually brought them from the brink of death to the heights of fame and popularity. But both expressed their happiness over two things—that they are going home and that Paris received them so cordially.

Ruth is sailing as Mrs. Ruth Womack with one trunk, two bags, 17 Paris gowns, four coats, six hats, and two pairs of shoes. She was anxious to see her husband, Lyle Womack, who cabled he was waiting for her in New York.

"What a darling boy he is," Ruth said, "But I told him not to do it since he risks losing his government job in Panama by leaving his post for so many days."

HOLDUP AT BUCYRUS REPORTED TO POLICE

A report of the theft of a filling station at Bucyrus early last night was received by the local police department from the police of that city shortly before 8 o'clock last night. The holdup man, who secured $27 for his trouble, was described as wearing a gray cap, a blue shirt and dark gray trousers.

It will be just like some mean competitor to refer to it as the remodeled Ford.

The sad case of Indianapolis may be taken as another illustration of what happens usually when a municipality falls into the clutches of a lot of self-constituted reformers.

Things are never so bad that they might not be worse. By way of illustration, suppose the radio fans had to dial in on the station sending out the propaganda of the Republican radicals!

Evansville, Indiana, the home town of the first American soldier to fall in the World war, neglected to place flowers upon his grave on the tenth anniversary of his death. How soon we are forgotten!

To strengthen his dictatorship still further, Pilsudski has scrapped the Polish parliament, but, that, come to think of it, isn't so much of an achievement as was his rising above his soda water name.

Doctors holding a symposium up in Chicago have decided that dieting is dangerous and that one suffering from fatness should be placed under professional care. That looks like mighty good business to us.

We confess to some surprise that no arrests have followed the announcement in Thursday's Star that bets, including one for $200 on the reelection of Mayor Hazen, are being posted in an uptown business place. Can it be that the mayor has let up on his ruthless campaign against baseball pools, punch boards and other forms of gambling?

The Courthouse Improvement.

At the time of the building of the present courthouse, when both labor and material were comparatively cheap, architects seemingly sought to make public buildings as imposing as possible, and, seemingly, they didn't care how much space they wasted in the interiors of such buildings to accomplish that end. In the present county building a great space, which can be made into a fourth floor, counting the basement as a first floor, was left between the third floor and the roof, the position of which is marked by the windows under the eaves. It is proposed to utilize this space for much-needed office rooms and to install an elevator to give access to them, as well as the offices on the other floors, without working too great a hardship upon the public which may have business in them or upon those occupying them. At the same time, it is proposed to remove the pyramidal flight of stone steps at the south front of the courthouse, close the entrance on the second floor permanently, and utilize any and all space gained for working and record vault purposes. The western steps, the joints of which are showing the wear and tear of the years, would also be removed and a simpler and easier approach to the second floor substituted therefor.

There is pressing need for more room in the courthouse. The county records must be preserved and space for the necessary vaults is lacking. The need of office space should be apparent when it is said that the county is paying out annually $1,410 for offices outside the building for the county prosecutor, the county board of education and the county election board. The building is also badly in need of repairs. Some of the stonework in the exterior should be looked after and there is urgent need for the reconditioning of the rooms and hallways in what some call the basement. It is proposed also to afford better quarters for the women's waiting-room and to clean the exterior of the building by sandblasting it just as the bank building across Center street was cleaned.

To do all this and place the building in a clean and sanitary condition throughout as well as improve the heating system that the new office rooms may be supplied with heat, it is proposed to issue bonds to the extent of $80,000 to run covering a period of twenty-five years. The proposal will be submitted to the voters of the county next Tuesday. If it carries, the county commissioners will go before the court of common pleas, as provided by law in all cases where a county building or improvements to one exceed in cost $25,000, and ask for the appointment of a building commission, to be composed of the three commissioners and four citizens to be named by the court, two from each of the two dominant parties, and the plans for the improvement and the work done under them must be approved by this commission.

We are very glad to say that the county commissioners have proceeded in this matter in a most commendable way. They have had an architect prepare plans and make an estimate upon the probable cost of the work. They have told the public just what is sought to be done and given out all possible information to enlighten the public concerning the proposed improvement that it may know just what it is doing in voting. We feel that nothing more could be done by them than they have done to acquaint voters with the situation, and we believe the proposal is entitled to friendly consideration and approval.

That $800,000 Bond Proposal.

With the election but two or three days away, the situation which the voters of Marion face in the matter of the proposed $800,000 sewer bond issue seems to us to be even somewhat more perplexing than it was at the time when it was first announced that approval of the proposal by the voters would be sought.

From first to last, just one certainty has been apparent, and that is that storm water sufferers in the various sections of the city should be afforded relief. Concerning the best method of affording such relief and the cost of such relief there is much uncertainty.

In the beginning we were told by the city authorities that it was not anticipated that the cost of the proposed improvements would exceed $750,000, but that they would ask for $50,000 more as a sort of an emergency anchor to windward. Details of the proposed improvement were lacking, but we were told that the city authorities planned to carry the storm water to the westward, that the bulk of the proceeds of the bond issue would be used for this purpose, the balance being used to extend the sanitary sewer system, and make connections where sewers were improperly connected.

Something like two weeks ago, after meeting with a number of the local realtors, the city engineer came out with an announcement in this newspaper, accompanied by a hastily-proposed plat, in which he proposed to direct the storm water falling to the eastward of the ridge running in a general southwardly direction through the eastern part of the city to the Ququa ditch. The city engineer stated that the routes were somewhat tentative, and then, in the light of the fact that we had been told that $750,000 was the anticipated cost of the improvements necessary to give us the needed relief, he made this rather amazing statement:

"The amount of money we have asked for in the bond issue is conservative. It will not construct all the sewers that we need, but will relieve the worst flood conditions for the present."

The city engineer closed his statement by saying:

"We are asking for a bond issue amounting to $800,000. Of this amount approximately $600,000 will be spent for storm water sewers, $150,000 for main sanitary sewers and $50,000 for changing house connections that are tapped into the wrong sewer.

"It would seem more logical to have a complete survey, maps and estimates of the work, before the voters are asked to support this bond issue, but this requires considerable money and we do not have it to spend for this purpose beforehand."

The evening before the publication of the city engineer's statement, the chairman of the city's finance committee was reported in our news columns to have told a meeting of the members of a Sunday-school class addressed by him at Epworth church, that, in the event of the defeat of the $800,000 bond proposal, which he intimated would be defeated, council would propose a bond issue to correct improper sewer connections, which he estimated would not exceed in cost $75,000. Another figure on sewer connection cost, the former having been $50,000.

A few days later another city employe came out with a statement, the burden of which was devoted to the proving of the position of the city authorities, that there is need of storm water relief and sewer connections, which is generally conceded, but it shed little light on the probable cost or how relief was to be attained.

The following day a letter from a Cleveland consulting engineer to still another city employe was given publication, in which the consulting engineer, who has supervised quite a lot of work in this city, expresses his conviction that the $800,000 estimate for the improvements proposed was a fairly accurate one. Basing his views on the statement of our city engineer printed in the Star, with data submitted to him by the city engineer and on his personal knowledge of the situation gleaned while here supervising the construction of our new disposal plant as well as a preliminary survey made by him seven years ago, he estimated that the proposed improvements would cost $760,000, but he held that the city's engineer's plan of diverting storm water to Ququa ditch would not afford the relief sought, and intimated that the original route was the proper one. He also gave estimates on the cost of the various sections of the proposed extensions, whether they followed the tentative plan or other courses subsequently selected.

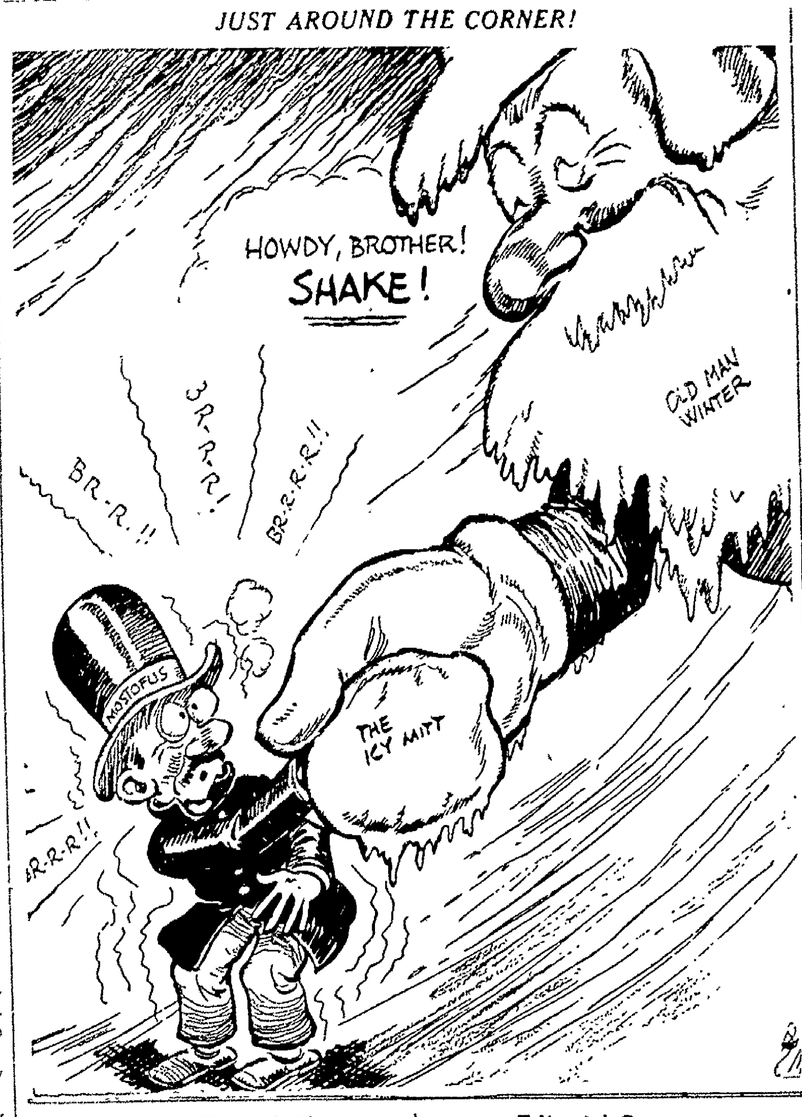
The voters no doubt have read the statements in detail. Our aim here is simply again to call the attention of the voters to them. If the voters of Marion feel that the proposal has been placed before them adequately to give them a true insight into its worth, that the matters brought out justify them in voting the expenditure of $800,000 for the proposed improvement, then they should support the measure, for it is not a question of the need of relief, but of the amount and manner of relief and of cost. If they feel that the showing has not been sufficient on the points in question, then they should vote against the proposal.

Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, has been invited to loose his heavy artillery on King George at Brantford, Ontario, which may be taken as another straw to show that there's nothing in the theory that the British can not appreciate a joke.

To add to the humor of the situation, Frederick Franklin Schrader, former associate of George Sylvester Viereck in the editing of the Fatherland, has injected himself into the America First campaign of Mayor Bill Thompson.

And now the radicals, who usually claim allegiance to the Republican party before the primaries, are assailing Mr. Lowden, the distinguished Illinoisan who voiced the deathless sentiment that nobody could afford to reject a presidential nomination. It's no more than fair, however, to say that Frank made his utterance before Mr. Coolidge's "I do not choos.."

JUST AROUND THE CORNER!



Fats Seep Through Skin.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Not long ago I told you a good deal about the skin and its functions. In that article the two kinds of glands were described. First, the sweat glands which pour out the perspiration were mentioned. Then, the uses of the oil glands, grease glands, sebaceous glands—I don't care what name you give them—were explained.

The skin would lose its elasticity if it were not for the oil glands. It would dry up and crack without them. It would no longer be waterproof.

Likewise, the hair would be dry and harsh without oil. It would become brittle and break off without grease. At the root of each hair of the body is a tiny gland to supply this oil.

Some folks seem actually to ooze oil. Their noses are shiny and greasy. When you shake hands with them the skin feels as if coated with butter.

Young people are inclined to have pimples, a condition called "acne." It seems to be a time of life when the sebaceous glands are very active. Unless there is free escape of the secretion it dams up in the duct, becomes dirty from the sooty air and makes what we call a "blackhead." The skin of the face may be peppered with these disfiguring defects.

If this mass, which is sure to produce irritation of the skin, becomes infected, there is a pus-filled pimple. In brief, this is what happens in acne.

The same activity met in the glands of the skin will be found in the oil glands of the scalp. Consequently an excessive quantity of this greasy secretion will ooze out on the skin of the head. When it dries, it brushes off or falls off in the familiar white flakes, a condition we call "dandruff."

Of course there may be and probably are, other factors having to do with its cause. But this is one important feature.

Sometimes there are patches of the scalp where there is much more dandruff production than elsewhere. In this case there will be moisture of the skin in that region and perhaps great itching.

I am firmly of the opinion that persons inclined to dandruff should reduce the intake of cream, butter, cheese, fried foods, thick gravies, fat meat and all foods which are rich in fat. They do not need so much fat and should avoid it as much as possible.

Frequent washing of the hair with an abundance of water and good soap is very desirable. Use a generous quantity of soap suds; rinse these out and apply more soap. Give the hair two or three washings and rinsings this way. Then wash out all the soap with a large amount of clear water. Dry the hair and comb it into place.

Avoid the use of hair brushes. Use a coarse comb and do not fuss with the hair. Everything you do to it stimulates the oil glands and makes more trouble.

Such shampoos should be made by a man two or three times a week. A woman with long hair should wash it at least once a week.

There are local remedies which seem to help. But the main thing is proper dieting and perfect cleanliness of the scalp.

DIRGE FOR MY GARDEN.

The autumn wind goes up and down, and grieves;
The plaintive skies bend lower to lament.
Oh burn a taper for my yellowing leaves,
And give my aster-stalks the sacrament.

I still remember how I cut the ground.
Odorous from the rains of yester-spring.
And how, within my palm, lay little round
Seeds for my scattering.

I'll not forget the day the robin came
And made his debut in my lilac tree,
Nor when the rambler wore his coat of flame
To tell his love for me.

But they are gone. The sound of wings departing,
The sight of brown stems in their funeral dress,
Have left me only, me, alone and staring
At the strange loneliness.

—Jane Hillyer Speller.

Editorial Comment.

THE HOUSE WITHOUT WINDOWS.

Rudolph P. Miller, former superintendent of buildings in Manhattan, and in New York an unimpeachable engineering authority, tells the American Institute of Steel Construction that skyscrapers without windows would be, or could be, far superior to the present type.

The arguments are all good: Artificial light is already used much of the time. Windowless buildings would be cheaper. They would be safer from fire. Far better air could be obtained by pumping than the dust-laden air direct from the streets. There would be more wall space for the disposition of furniture in apartments, such as pianos and bookcases; such as office desks downtown. Workers could concentrate better upon their tasks without distraction from outside.

And there's the rub! What does the worker want of so much concentration? A blimp loafs overhead, an attendant plane wheeling about it. A peregrine falcon harries the doves about the Municipal building. Over on Jimmy Walker's steps somebody is being welcomed, the band plays! An ocean greyhound pokes her steel nose into the square of river that shows between two great towers. A fire engine scatters the traffic below. On clear days the Watchung mountains show blue in the distance. The sun shines; or doesn't. A thunderstorm drives black as night through by Sherman's creek. Men tear down buildings. Men rear others. Parades and half-masted flags; a human fly or a fire; an ambulance or a sample from a rodeo—the blessed window-sash frames the endless variety of scene which is city life.

Oh, of course, Mr. Miller may be right. The future is with him and with all kinds of progress. But let some of us be frankly old-fashioned. For a little time yet, leave us our windows.—New York World

Beating Sunlight.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The United States coast and geodetic survey has found that an ordinary auto headlight, furnished with a specially constructed lens with a concentrated filament, is a more efficient instrument than the classic heliograph for long-distance light signaling. The electric current for the light is supplied by dry cells such as are used for doorbells.

With this simple apparatus signals have been seen by the unaided eye as far away as 150 miles. In the mountains, where so much of this survey work is done, the atmosphere is frequently of crystal clearness, and then such lights 100 miles or more distant shine like fallen stars alighted on a peak.

In California the survey has a sight-line 192 miles in length, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Helena, each mountain being surmounted by a basal surveying station. This particular line has been employed in connecting up the surveys of the Atlantic and Pacific sides of the United States.

Young men of scientific ability who wish to find some occupation that is at once highly useful to mankind and highly romantic and adventurous from the personal viewpoint, might do well to try for a place in the geodetic service. I do not suppose that great numbers of such places are open, and I am sure that no one could obtain one who did not present excellent credentials as to education and character, but it seems to me that the mail-clad knights of King Arthur's chivalrous days were less to be envied than these modern knights errant of science, furnished with knowledge that would have seemed necromancy to the old king of the "Round Table," and armed with instruments that would have killed Merlin, the Enchanter, with spite.

The surveyors are brought into the most intimate relations with all the intricate wonders and beauties of the Rocky mountains, the Sierras, the coast ranges, as well as those of the Appalachian region; they have daily the pleasures and adventures of the mountain climber, the prospector and the hunter, and all those experiences of wild life and unknown nature that give endless charm to the narratives of explorers and discoverers of new regions. Their signal lights flashed from peak to peak 100 miles apart, their breathless scrambles among tangled mountains, their campfires glowing amidst the lofty columns, and reflected from the roofing branches of primeval forest trees, their unexpected discoveries of hidden secrets and new aspects of nature the sense of independence and mental freedom which comes from the original character of their work—all these things should serve to keep them from ennui and make the earth seem to them an abode of perpetual novelty and undying interest.

Next to being an astronomer I think I should prefer to be a geodetic surveyor sending electric beams from reconstructed auto headlights across fathomless gulfs of inter-mountain space, and so flashing to some fellow worker on a distant peak, information capable of being transmuted into the form of maps to guide the feet of our companions marooned with us on this rocky islet of interplanetary space.—Copyright, 1927.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 5—This is a tragedy of a—a story of a girl lifted out of utter ... by the movie razzle dazzle to the heights ... left snagged there. From almost kitchenmaidery she ascended to her own marble castle and all its trappings. And for a ... held first place. Crowds stood in the streets over America to watch her flicker on the silver sheet. She was courted by shop girls and ... as the social elect and the result was ... Her A became extremely broad and she ... on ordinary folk as hoi-polloi.

Her mere presence in a box at a Broadway theater would stop the show until she took a bow. And one morning when she ... Fifth avenue department store the police reserves had to be called to cut a path for her to the waiting limousine.

And by degrees her cranial inflation became more pronounced. Even to those who knew her up she became insufferable. Such was the ... this appeared on the location where she was being directed: "Members of this company are not permitted to speak to the star."

Then came the crowning financial climax of her career. It was a three-year graduated ... for running in five figures weekly and ... higher yearly. It was said to be top salary up to that time in a world of enormous salaries and with lofty disdain she spurned it.

She decided to produce on her own, and ... been promised a certain amount by backers for each picture. The first picture was ... nished when the stipulated amount of backers was exhausted. They refused ... cash. Her emissary was sent to a New York bank. It was not a bankable proposition.

The star had lived extravagantly and had slight assets. The company that made ... such a huge offer found another satisfying office star to replace her and was not interested. It is the old, old story of America glancing at the clay feet of a departing ... for the new.

West End avenue, a residential thoroughfare, is called the servant girls' "Lover's Lane." Almost any evening will be found housemaids, governesses and cooks in the delivery entrances, cuddling up to their boy friends. They have no other spooning place. Somehow New York families do not provide a place for servants to entertain. And that may be largely responsible for what is known as the servant problem."

* * *

Incidentally, West End avenue strikes one as a street where people enjoy fine things without show. The private homes are beautiful without ostentation. The residents enjoy music and not jazz noise. They are folk who in a city widely heralded as a show-off seem to know the rare charm and worth of simplicity.

A society bachelor hard pressed for original idea at a dinner party hit upon going down into the Tennessee mountains, where he was born, and digging up one of those banjo-in-the-hollow corn-stalk violinists. He was a one-galloused old fellow with gray hair to his shoulders who had seldom worn a pair of shoes. He was induced to appear just as he had appeared at log cabin parties and barn dances. He sang such tunes as "Hand Me Down My Walking Cane," "I Wish I Was a Single Girl Again," "My Horses Ain't Hungry," and "The Butcher's Boy." His simplicity and the plaintive songs considered so hot in the sixties made the most distinctive hit of the social season. Which goes to prove jazz isn't everything.

On the other hand—save for Chic Sale—Rube comedians become popular in New York. This has been explained as due to the large foreign-born population which forms the ... bulk of theatrical patronage. They do not "get" the hayseed patter and costume.

An Isolated Community.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

An exclusiveness born of inaccessibility, youth's eagerness for city life marks ... Island of St. Kilda, Scotland, whose census totals fifty-four inhabitants. Its population figure, by the way, is on the decline. St Kilda once boasted 100 "natives."

But its exclusiveness is not of the ... that attracts the elite. And its inaccessibility is not of the variety that challenges man to conquer. Its small population is due to the younger generation preferring the excitement of Glasgow rather than distinctive isolation.

During eight months of the year this St. Kilda Island three miles long and two miles broad is shut off from friendly or commercial communications. There is only one landing place, and the great cliffs of the island rise from the depths of sky-blue waters.

Those who live on the storm-battered cliffs know only danger. But the risks have become so necessary to life that the inhabitants are apparently unaware of the constant perils that would terrorize most men.

Rather than fear, the men seem to have only love of the towering cliffs which they scale in search of puffins and other sea-fowl. The cliffs jut in picturesque deception to a height of 1,000 feet over the ocean.

Conachar, the island's mountain, rises 1,400 feet above sea level, and the side of it that ... next the sea forms a precipice of 1,220 feet. Vivid cliff flowers sparkle from the cold rock crevices.

And Conachar looks over to the Hebrides and on to the mountains of Skye. 100 miles away. It is a land of lure—but a lure that holds only the few who have dared its dangers and carved warmth and beauty from its treacherous stone.—Copyright, 1927.

"Lay off Our Bill"

Rogers Thinks King George Ought Not To Harass Chicago's Ruler So; Aviators and Goats Only Ones Able To See Boulder Dam Site

BY WILL ROGERS

What I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see as I travel around over our Commonwealth. There is some things that you can't see in an Aeroplane, that is if you are looking to see em, and this is one of them. I flew all over Boulder Dam and out on the Colorado River, but I never seen one of them. I flew all over, and even almost through it, and even the Politician says he has been over it investigated it, He hasent seen such thing, for he can't get down low enough. Aviator and a mountain goat is all that ever saw that damsite. To look at the place, it don't look like it would take more than few brush and rock piled in there to make a dam. But if ever nature give you a lift on anything it sure did there. But of course when the OVERHEAD department gets in there, there will be millions and millions that will go for plans, and not for moving any dirt.

It's got to be built though, and if we don't know enough out here in these parts to agree among ourselves, why send for Mexico come up and build it.

Mellon's Saved Some

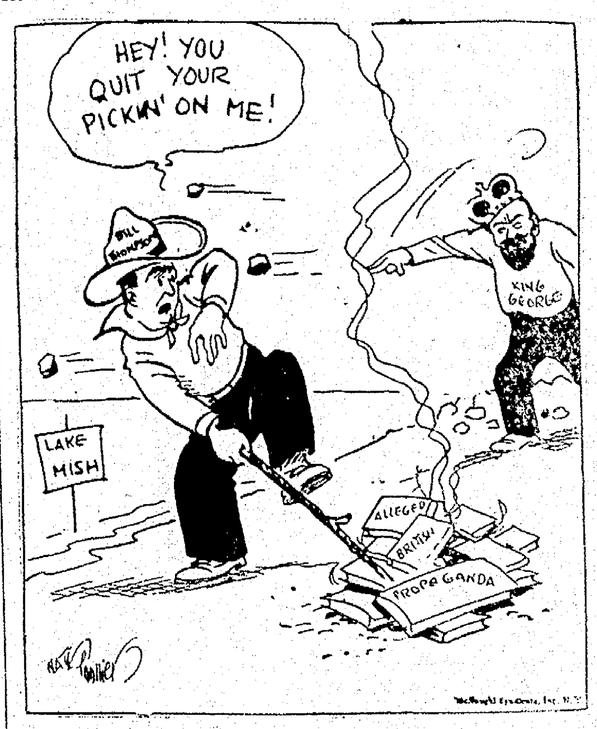
Well lets see what else has run over the ol mill in the way of news lately. Congress will be meeting pretty soon, so we haven't got much Liberty left. Mellon has saved up a little money and when those six hundred Legislators line up at their feed trough, poor Mellon's little nest egg wont be a bite around for them. They have had six months to think up some bill to offer that will get the Government loose from some of it for each one's old home district.

Well, we was all glad to see Ambassador Morrow get into Mexico intact. He will be visiting Chicago next and coming out without a puncture. He came in on his work with a charmed life anyway. I believe that fellow will be pretty good. You know Mellon making good like he has has kinder encouraged these rich men to get out and try and do something for their County. You see we got so many rich in America now that just to be one without any other qualification has got mighty monotonous. Being introduced to a millionaire don't scare us or overwhelm us with awe like it used to. We used to think he run everything, and we was afraid to crook our finger at one for fear we would make him sore at us. But now we know that they all run everything, but no one of them runs anything.

So they know that they have got to have a side line to be known. Just being a millionaire dont mean any more to the general public than just being an Elk, or a Baptist, or President of the Chamber of Commerce. So every one of them is on the lookout for a hobby, or a job, or an office, or if they can't be known any other way they have to turn to a little philanthropy on the side.

Graduated With Cal

Now Morrow dident mean any more to us as a name, than To-Morrow, which is just another one of the 365. He was connected with Morgan and Co., but Lord, what did that mean to the average one of us? Morgan has more connections than a telephone Exchange. We had heard that he graduated with Coolidge at Amherst. Well that dident give his publicity much of a boost. But when he volunteered to face Mexico without a helmet, why then we begin to notice him. If Millionaires in the Country would just go to work, why we wouldent need any immigration for years.



It's the worst personal combat between rulers the world has ever seen.

Mexico has got her problems and we are most of them.

Russia has thrown Trotzky out. There is a funny thing about Trotzky. I was over there last summer and found out He is too conservative. This Bird Stalin that is the male Mussolini of Russia, he and Trotzky dont gee togeather. You see a Conservative in Russia is a fellow that thinks you only ought to divide with him what you have, while a real communist believes that you ought to give it all to him. But you notice they dont do anything with Trotzky but rule him out of the Party. They dont do any banishing to Siberia, or promiscious shooting with him. They would like too but they dont dare, You know he and Lenin started in togeather and while Lenin is dead, the old Peasants still are strong for Trotzky, so no matter how mad the ruling party might get you can go and bet they will never harm Trotzky. He stands too good with the old farmers. He knows a lot of these things they are trying is apple sauce, and wont work.

Like Prohibition

Communism is like Prohibition, it's a good idea but it wont work. Well never mind Russia and Mexico, we better be worrying what is doing somewhere else. Oh yes Lloyd George said in a big article that the Allies had in reserve or under arms 11,000,000 men, and that the defeated nations of the last war had not one million all togeather. He meant by that that it looked like in the next war we would have to fight among ourselves, or go to the trouble of not having one. But when you got 11,000,000 men all over the World working to learn a trade, they are pretty apt to want to work at it some day, especially when no nation has ever been smart enough to give medals in peace time.

All the little Nations in the League at the last meeting at Geneva are pretty sore at the big ones. They claim they don't pay much attention to them at all. So you see you will never have dissarmament, for what designates a big Nation from a little one but the size of their Army and Navy? India and China would make 20 of Japan as a Nation. But Japan's Navy makes up the difference, and twenty times over. Brazil is bigger than England, France, Italy, Spain and all of them put together and has more natural resources. But they are a little shy on the Army and Navy, hence they are not classed very high in importance.

But speaking of International intrigues and Politics lets get back home. Did you ever see a man so harassed by a Monarch as big Bill Thompson is by King George? When I was over there last summer I tried to get to see the King and ask him to lay off Bill. It's the worst personal combat I think the world has ever witnessed between two rulers. It's reached the bonfire stage now. You know, since Judge Lindsey burned the confessions of half of Denver, instead of selling them to Magazines and making himself rich and the folks famous, why everybodys minds are on bonfires.

It seems that the Chicago Library has been subsidized by the King of England. He has been sticking a lot of Dick Turpin novels in there and replacing the lives of Hinky Dink, and Bath House John. Bill wants to prove to the voters that America is First, even if it was discovered last. He wants to strike the flint that will light the torch of Liberty as they burn to a cinder every page containing reference, hint, suspicion, heresay, or even inference between lines of the British Empire, King George or any of his forebears, or offsprings. Even to any picture depicting the eating of roast beef, Plum duff, Dotkshire Buck, or the drink of Lime juice. All such periodicals will be burned at the stake on the filled-in beach, just before next election.

Barber Poles
Coverlets
Conventions

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

THE tread of scurrying business folk and customers has long since driven the placid old Indian chief and his handful of choice cigars to seek solace in the land of his forebears but we still have with us the barber pole which, while it didn't exactly come over in the Mayflower, came into prominence soon after, when the boys got settled here and were seized with a desire to keep dolled up. There was a time when the barber pole was content to be parked on a substantial looking wooden base either out on the curb or at the door of the tonsorial parlor, (depending pretty much on the type of boys in the neighborhood,) but it long since has risen to a place of prominence, exceeding, I am sure, even the highest hopes of the inventor. Not only has it risen in point of position but has kept abreast of the time to the extent of electric lights and sometimes a glass case to live in. Just why it should whirl around to the extent of making one dizzy to watch it unless it is to entertain the youngsters parked in perambulators outside the door while the maternal parent is inside being shorn, or to tell a prospective customer that the barber is still wielding his razor or scissors as the need might be, for I have observed that they only operate during business hours. Back in the good old days in Europe a brass basin was added at the end of the barber pole, possibly to indicate that one might perform their ablutions if so inclined. The striping, which has been the same since barber poles were invented is in imitation of a ribbon with which the arm of a person who has been bled is bound up and originally indicated that the barber combined minor surgical operations with his other work.

IF you are prone to permit your mind to wander from the sometimes wearisomethings of every-day routine, you'll just revel in the display of old-fashioned quilts and coverlets on display in the Star auditorium under the auspices of members of the Kiwanis Clubs. The question of just what grandma did when she was a girl, when no one had even heard of a moving picture show, is easily answered. Perhaps she had never studied color combination but she sure knew what colors looked well together and the designs are marvels of craftsmanship. And the stitches. Well look at them, is all I have to tell you.

EVERY dog has his day and every cat his night, so they say, and I believe it is true. I'm taking two days, one for good luck, and am attending the O. N. W. A. convention which opened last night in Toledo. Imagine being at a convention where you can stroll leisurely into session at 9 o'clock, (yes, we're all always on time,) and stroll out just as leisurely, without rushing thither and yon to check up on this name and that amendment and be sure that the afternoon session is going to be carried out per schedule, to say nothing of dashing into the office to be told you have just so many minutes to make the dead-line. We have pads and pencils and use them too, but where I get the big kick is speaking right up in meeting. (If you're a real honest-to-goodness woman you know how hard it is to keep still when the speaking began.) And to be a real guest of the city with the key to the whole town tucked right in your pocket. At least that's the way you feel. The "Sob Sisters," that's what the Toledo newspaper women have signed themselves have planned some wonderful things for our entertainment, and the speakers are vastly interesting, but it's like every other convention the minute two of us are gathered together we talk shop.

PRESBYTERIAN GUILD TO ASSIST WITH FESTIVAL

But Sally refuses it and goes into business with her AUNT EMILY [illegible]ROME, who has given up school teaching to turn her country house into a wayside inn.

The business does not thrive, although the food is delicious and the place is beautiful and comfortable. Finally Aunt Emily hires a jazz orchestra in one last effort to make her restaurant popular, although she disapproves of jazz. But "The Lark," a nearby roadhouse, takes away the business, and Aunt Em and Sally are in despair. The family all move in, to make matters worse. When things look very black, John Nye comes out and offers Sally a job with him, but Millie tells her she really came to see herself. Sally turns him down, and decides to stick to Aunt Em. She and Ted Sloan hit upon the idea of doing some exhibition dancing to see if that will draw the crowds. Sally is a marvelous dancer.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER XLVI

AUNT EMILY was just as straight laced as she was strong minded.

And the chances are that she never would have allowed Sally to put on her dance that night if it had not been for Mrs. Jerome.

But the minute she found out that Mrs. Jerome was dead set against Sally's dancing, Aunt Emily was all for it. She took a certain bitter enjoyment in disagreeing with her sister-in-law about everything.

"It's a fine idea," she declared when Mrs. Jerome came to her to beg her to forbid Sally to make "a public show" of herself.

Mrs. Jerome left her in anger and went upstairs to hunt through her trunks for a red satin mask that she had packed away years before, after Millie had worn it to a high school masquerade.

Presently she appeared in the doorway of Sally's room with it dangling from her hand by its elastic headband.

"Here!" she cried, and tossed it down upon the bed beside Sally. "If you must dance downstairs tonight, for my sake wear this thing to hide your face. . . . I think you're acting in a perfectly disgraceful way, and I don't believe anybody wants to see fancy dancing anyway. The whole scheme sounds perfectly crazy to me!"

She bounced out of the room, leaving Sally staring through the doorway with thoughtful eyes. She was wholly in sympathy with her mother—and besides, the thought of facing all those strange people and dancing for them was a terrifying thought to her.

She picked up the scarlet mask and put it on. Then she ran into Millie's room and hunted through her top dresser drawer until she found what she was looking for—a bright red lipstick and a pair of coral earrings.

"Very slick, Sally!" she told herself approvingly as she stood back from her mirror to get the effect.

Through the holes in the mask her eyes flashed at her, and the corners of her scarlet mouth went up in a wide and lovely smile. She began to shake those shoulders of hers ever so delicately, with a dainty rippling movement—like the wave that runs over a wheatfield when a breeze is blowing.

Then she turned to the bed and picked up a handful of the little gilt bells that lay there in a box. She began to sew them to her satin shoulder straps, one by one.

• • •

The May night was the first really hot night of the season. The kind of night when people like to leave the town behind them and get out into the wide darkness of the country.

At 7 o'clock there were seven automobiles parked along the evergreen hedge in Aunt Emily's garden, and there were eighteen people in her dining room, eating delicious dinners from her Indian Tree china.

At half past seven another very small roadster drove in and stopped beside the seven cars. Ted Sloan got out and walked around the house and into the kitchen, where Aunt Emily was having high words with Millie.

"All right," she was saying, "you refuse to help me out tonight and you'll never eat another meal in this house! What makes you think you're too good to carry a platter of chicken into that room, I'd like to know."

Millie shot a look at her that was like a dagger being thrown through the air. "She wants me to wait on table like a servant!" she said indignantly to Ted.

"Servant nothing!" snapped Aunt Em, stirring a bowlful of giblet gravy as if she were beating eggs. "Sally and I wait on table, and it won't hurt you a bit. You haven't paid me a cent's worth of board since you've been here, and I'm going to get some work out of you from now on, or know the reason why! Now, you just put that apron on and dance right into that room with this platter!"

She banged the big, steaming dish down upon the table, and tied a white embroidered apron around Millie's slender waist. She gave her a shove toward the dining room door, and Millie actually went!

"This makes me sick!" she paused long enough to remark. "There's no reason why Sally shouldn't be doing this! This notion of hers that she can dance well enough for these people is a joke, anyway. She's just making a fool of herself by doing it!" Millie had been talking to her mother, evidently.

A second later the door that led from the hall swung open and Sally flashed into the opening. The tiny bells shone and tinkled on her ankles, on her shoulders, on her slim little wrists. Her smiling mouth was redder than the scarlet mask that covered the upper half of her face, and she had painted the heels of her satin slippers scarlet, too. She was nothing like the quiet, modest Sally who kept house and worked hard every day of her life.

"Flaming youth!" said Ted, with a surprised laugh, his eyes on the provocative mouth, with the deep dimple in one corner. "What's the idea of the mask, for Pete's sake?" He came closer and flipped the bells on one of Sally's perfect little shoulders. "And the bells? What are they for?"

"Music," answered Sally, and her voice drowned in the sudden clash of jazz that sounded from the dining room.

"Here we go, Ted!" she cried excitedly. She grasped his hand with one of hers that was icy with nervousness. "Pray for us, Aunt Em!"

"Please don't wiggle your shoulders—that's all I ask!" called Aunt Em, as she watched them go—the stocky, red headed boy and girl, with her smiling, tilted mouth, her swaying figure covered with little bells that tinkled with every move she made.

Sally was no more like the Sally of the dishpan and the dictaphone at that moment than a brilliant bird of paradise is like an English sparrow.

The people who sat at the tables in the room looked up from their plates and forgot to look down again while she stood there in the doorway, poised on her toes.

And then she and Ted began to dance—just as they had danced hundreds of times before at "The Blue Lagoon." Cheek to cheek, toe to toe, swaying and stepping in perfect time. It was a joy to see them.

The music stopped for a minute and then broke into a double time bit, a Southern Blues, with all the wild poetry of savage elemental things written into it.

Sally swung away from Ted, and stood alone in the center of the room, her breast falling and rising excitedly, her lips parted, and her feet and shoulders keeping time to the swift, wild music.

And then she began to do the "Shimmy Black Bottom" dance that she had shown Ted Sloan on this very floor not so long ago.

She combined those two famous dances, that can be so suggestive if done badly, and made of them a thing of beauty. She frolicked and frolicked around the floor, the tiny bells tinkling as she moved. She danced as if she loved to dance—as if it were the beginning and the end of being alive. As if there were nothing else worth while in the world. She put her heart and soul, as well as her body, into that dance.

And when she had finished the 18 people in the room clapped their hands so long and so loudly that you would have sworn there were 50 of them instead of less than 20, if you had heard them.

But Sally wouldn't dance again. She waved and tossed them a smile from off her scarlet lips, and vanished into Aunt Emily's kitchen, breathless and flushing almost as scarlet as her earrings.

"No, I won't dance any more tonight!" she declared to Ted. "Let them come back again if they want to see me shimmy again! That's good business! See?"

He did see. And he chuckled over the notion of Sally's becoming a business woman, with all the tricks of the trade, over night!

"You were a very good partner, Ted!" Sally said to him with enthusiasm, "and thanks for helping me out. I love you for it!"

The next second she knew she shouldn't have said that, for his mouth straightened and his gray eyes darkened. "Do you mean that?" he asked her quickly, and very quietly, and she shook her head.

"Come out to the car with me," he said when he was going. But she shook her head and smiled up into his face.

"Not tonight," she answered.

She was slowly putting John Nye out of her brain and heart, she told herself. But the thought of him was still too strong to make way for any other man's image there—for Ted Sloan's image. She liked him—but not well enough to follow him out into the springtime darkness to give him the kisses that she knew he meant to have, if he could take them.

"See you tomorrow night," she said, and just barely touched his hand as he passed her.

And then our Masked Dancer went upstairs, changed her clothes, and came downstairs to help Aunt Em wash dishes until midnight.

• • •

For the next week or so there was no increase in the business.

Then, gradually, people began to hear about the Masked Dancer at The House by the Side of the Road.

Beau, who was still working at the bank, told some of his "buddies" there about her, and they came. Mabel did a bit of advertising among the girls at Bursall's.

One night some people dropped in on their way back to town from The Lark, and the next night they came again.

Slowly, but surely, things began to get better. The dining room was not crowded every night, by any means, but it was often comfortably full. Aunt Em hired a dish washer and a piano player for the band.

Sally bought herself a new costume—a cunning affair of steel blue satin covered with tiny blue-and-silver bells. It cost her a hundred dollars, exactly.

Mrs. Jerome was with her the day she brought it home from town to Aunt Em's little car.

"Perfect nonsense to pay out that much money for a dress like that!" she declared scarily, "especially when we all need new summer hats, and I ought to have an air cushion for my chair. I just wish you had to sit all day the way I do—and I bet YOU'D have an air cushion—"

"But, Mother, we're spending my $30 a week, and Beau and Mabel and Millie are spending theirs—and they make more than that, every one of them!" broke in Sally, taking a corner beautifully. She was just learning to drive the car, and still kept her eye on the road. "We ought to get along on that, surely."

And then Mrs. Jerome threw her bomb. "I'm tired of living with your Aunt Em," she said sulkily. "I want a home of my own again—and if you care a snap of your fingers about my happiness you'll see that we all get into one again."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

There was a little ice near the shore of the pond when we went down to the dam this morning, but it has not snowed any more, but my grandfather says there is snow in the air because he can smell it. My aunt said if there was bootleg in the air she was sure he could smell it, but she didn't think he was much good on snow.

My father was sore about something and before I got done eating he laid down his knife and fork and looked at me until I kept getting smaller and smaller, and I felt like the waistband of my pants would be over the top of my head pretty soon if he didn't look the other way. Then he told me to tell him what the trouble was with Peanuts and to not lie about it, so I told him about Feeble smutting his face and me getting him to look in the window and the fight and Feeble turning the water on them. Just as I done Feeble and Youniss and Maggie came in and he asked Feeble about it, and she told it just the way I had, and everybody almost laughed their heads off, and my father hardee then any of them. If I had did it I would of got licked, but because she did it it was funny. Then my father said he wondered why Peanuts didn't tell it the way it was, and I said it was because he didn't want to tell on Feeble because he wanted her for a sweetie. Then everyone hollered and I riz up out of my chair to reach over the table for a pancake and when I sat down again my chair wasn't there because Feeble had pulled it away, and the pancake I had cooked flew over the top of my head. And Annabelle Lee was so pleased she hammered in her oatmeal with her mug and splashed it all over my grandfather's eyes and whiskers.

There was just a little ice at the edge of the water when we got to the damn and we went up to where we had seen the muskrat and looked for him, but he wasn't there. If Feeble had not got funny and drug my nose in the dirt that day we might have caught him.

No one has got a football but the Lost Bag of Tripe and he keeps it in the yard so no one but him can play with it, so we got our balls and bat and went over to the vacant lot and played ball, and let the girls play. And Feeble was at bat when the Lost Bag of Tripe came around trying to get into the game, and he stooped down and was dusting the home plate with his hat when Feeble landed where his pants was tight with the bat. He said just for that he wasn't going to play with us, and he turned around to go and fell over Jubilee. Everyone was sorry—not.

Worst feature of lying is that the habit grows on one.

Madge, Mary Compare Notes

I LOOKED at Mary Harrison with exasperation mingled with my amusement at her nonchalant, even callous attitude toward Noel Veritteu's devotion to her, and her announcement that when he "got over his pique" he would be ready to have her "make it up to him." I knew she was fully justified in her assumption, but it irritated me nevertheless.

"Do you know what your Uncle Jacky would call you?" I asked.

"Sure, she returned, promptly "A conceited little devil. You ought to pay me something for saying that, Auntie Madge. It's what you're planning to call me, only you're too ladylike."

She grinned at me knowingly, and I capitulated.

"There's only one thing I ought to do," I said laughingly, "and that's to take you over my knee and slipper you soundly. But as that isn't quite practicable—although I warn you that it's possible, and that also like 'Egbert' at Red Gap' I can be pushed just so far—we'll shelve the subject of your admirers for a while and I'll remind you that you haven't yet repeated to me the conclusions about Miss Lincoln you've already jotted down in that notebook of yours, and added the ones you set down tonight.

She flushed again, this time a bit resentfully, and I realized, too late, that she probably thought I meant humorously my wholly innocent references to the notebook in which she conscientiously jots down all her impressions of people and events. With a mental anathema at my own clumsiness, I hastily made the only amends possible.

"I've conned this affair over so much," I said casually, with apparent ignorance of her perturbation, "that I'm begining to mistrust my own judgment. I need a fresh viewpoint, and I don't know anyone possessing better powers of observation than yours. As I told you when we spoke of Miss Lincoln and Mr. Jackson awhile ago, I bow to your intuition."

I had spoken but the truth, only, of course, I might, with equal veracity, have added that Mary's youth and taste for melodrama sometimes clouded the really acute perceptions which were indisputably hers. Moreover, I had accomplished my end for her chagrin vanished promptly, and there was distinct pleasure in the grin she flashed at me.

"Thanks for the buggy-ride," she said, "and I'll gladly repeat all I've noticed about her, if they agree with your impressions of her, I shall be very proud, for honestly, Auntie Madge, you're about the foxiest thing I know."

"Taking that for granted," I gibed, "let us get on with our comparisons."

"In the first place," she returned promptly, "we agreed, I believe, that neither Miss Eleanor Lincoln, nor her relatives are Americans. They are natives of some European country, and they have taken the name Lincoln, because they think it is typically American."

She paused and looked at me. I nodded in approval of her first point, and she went on.

"Second, the Lincoln dame is an old friend of Mr. Jackson—I'll bet that isn't his name, either for he's the same kind of foreigner that she is—and that dog, Fedor, is her own pet that for some reason accommodating Mr. Jackson has been carting around the country."

"I agree with you again, Mary," I said.

"And, of course," she continued "that business of her fainting toward me because an owl hooted was all mince pie or whatever nightmares are made of. She fainted all right, but it was a two-legged owl that hooted, with a nice red beard."

Tame Shakespeare's 'Shrew' In Modern Dress on Stage; Other News of The Theater

Galsworthy's "Last Play," "Escape," Done in New York with Leslie Howard in Lead; "The Love Call" Is New Musical from Augustus Thomas' "Arizona"

BY BUSHNELL DIMOND

New York, Nov. 5—Ernest Hemingway's description of Pernod, that entirely devilish substitute for absinthe, fits with an utter exactitude, also, John Galsworthy's play, "Escape." "It has a good life," writes the author of "The Sun Also Rises," "but it drops you just as far." That was certainly the precise effect that "Escape," announced with just a little too much smug quality as Galsworthy's "last" play, had on me. It jerked me, with a steely wrench, up to heights of unimaginable human pain and insinuated beauty. And then I found it had dropped me into a pit of farcial inanity, as crude as a jungle deadfall.

It is not a distinguished piece of work on that account. But, while Galsworthy has before this written infinitely better drama, he has seldom, if ever, kept his searchlight so resolutely on one figure, giving that figure a color of sympathetic truth and a contour of inescapable honesty. His Matt Denant, who unintentionally kills a man and is thereafter projected on a tortuous and frustrated jail break, is fine, forthright character depiction; and as played by Leslie Howard, becomes a seasonal obligation upon even the most hard-boiled theatergoer.

Produced with Care

Mr. Howard's growing repute as an actor has had ample justification in the past year. High comedy of a kind rare in our huddled day he gave us in "Her Cardboard Lover," while in his own thin, but sprightly, "Murray Hill," he proved that he could walk the tightrope of farce, without a slip. Now he adds to these minor achievements by imparting to Galsworthy's rueful hero a pathos and a valor, a clear outline and a subtelty of approach, that mark him as a true and delicate artist. This is a really great performance, I think, as sly and mundane in its humors as it is deep and grave and rich in its emotional content.

The play has been produced with loving and attentive care by Winthrop Ames, with an impressive neatness that distributes the values with a steady hand. There were other admirable characterizations, including Hearietta Goodwin's street girl. But the surprise of the evening is the emergence of a young person named Viva Tattersall, who is surely going to be 1928's Helen Chandler. Fumbling for the right adjective with which to label her, I am torn between "enchanting" and "bewitching." Take your choice.

Modern Shakespeare

The Garrick Players, headed by that seemingly inseparable team, Mary Ellis and Basil Sydney, have cozily ensconced themselves in the theater of that name, and are doing bravely with a production of "The Taming of the Shrew," in modern dress. Detesting as I do this form of Elizabethan farce, I am forced to admit that the Players have given it a brand new coat of comic paint, and set, at moments, a breath of genuine beauty has clouded its ineptitudes with illusions of loveliness.

How much of this is due to the liberating presence of derby hats, riding crops, gowns by Jenny and sweaters, the individual spectator must decide for himself. At any rate, Mr. Sydney gives a bright, caressing, humorous and human performance, and Miss Ellis shines with that lunar fire which so enkindled our imaginations in the days of "The Dybbuk." The sheer silver of her speech is worth the trip to Thirty-fifth st. I liked, too, the prim daintiness of Betty Linley, and the bottle-nosed confusion of Maria Ouspenskaya's Curtis. But I don't want to see Teddy Jones in skirts any more; it's a little too painful.

Shubert's Busy Again

The Shuberts, who have been rather quiet of late, have filled the huge Majestic—"filled" is right—with another in that series of operas based on melodramas of Grandma's day. This time the bare bones of Augustus Thomas' "Arizona" have been clad in the flesh of Romberg's tunes, and you can 't through the rather long evening with considerable pleasure at "The Love Call." There is the usual very elaborate mounting and costuming; the usual full-throated male chorus; the usual striking "curtains" and bosom-heaving emotionality. Also the quite unusual Barry Lupino.

Mr. Lupino, in addition to being one of the funniest clowns England has ever sent us, is an acrobat of such alarming prehensility that one expects him to take a graceful nose dive and land, any moment, on the tip of the conductor's baton. He is teamed with the cunning Violet Carlson—her material isn't much—and there is Charlie Lawrence for further laughter. John Rutherford and Joseph Macauley are moderately distressing in character parts; but the score by the indefatigable Sigmund is several notches above "My Maryland," and has a love theme that will keep the cafe orchestras busy.

Estelle Taylor is Back In Films Once Again

NEWS OF MOVIES IN CINEMA CAPITAL

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Star Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5—Estelle Taylor has very effectively put a stop to the many rumors that she had left the screen for a life of domesticity by signing a contract with Robert Kane to play the feminine lead in "The Whip Woman."

For almost a year, Estelle, who is regarded as one of the most finished actresses on the screen, hasn't made a picture, principally because she was under contract to United Artists and they never had a story they considered suitable for her talents.

• • •

THIS long absence following the sensation she made as Lucretia Borgia in "Don Juan" is one of the things that is difficult to understand even in Hollywood, where motion picture idiosyncrasies are always accepted as a part of the game.

Then came Miss Taylor's long illness, with her husband, Jack Dempsey, insisting that she dismiss pictures from her mind until she had entirely recovered her health.

The test made by James C. Boyle, the director of Estelle as the Russian peasant girl heroine of Forrest Halsey's original story, "The Whip Woman," shows that Miss Taylor never has looked better.

• • •

IN fact, after seeing the test, Robert Kane telegraphed Richard Rowland, general manager of First National, and told him the part was made for Estelle.

And when Estelle long-distanced Jack to tell him that she had signed the contract, Jack said:

"Okay, honey."

So all is well.

• • •

"WHITE Shadows of the South Seas" is not to be marred by any clumsy theatrical efforts. Irving Thalberg expressed his belief that Frederick O'Brien's novel should be produced as faithfully as possible, and in order to do that he feels it is necessary to assemble a native cast.

With the exception of Lars Hansen and possibly a leading lady, who will accompany Robert Flaherty and W. C. Van Dyke to the tropical country, "White Shadows of the South Seas" will have native actors.

• • •

MR. FLAHERTY demonstrated that this can be done and done effectively when he made "Nanook of the North." There was a picture that made hard-boiled critics bow low.

Mr. Thalberg explained to me at one length that the O'Brien story is to be one of their (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's) de luxe specials for 1928.

• • •

ALEXANDER CORDA, husband of the beauteous Maria, director of "Helen of Troy," has been chosen to direct Billie Dove again.

Considering how well he did with Billie in that trashy story of "The Stolen Bride," he ought to give a good account of himself in "The Heart of the Follies Girl," Billie Dove's next. Let's hope his scenario will not be on the Bertha M. Clay order.

Billie Dove's stories have all been of this type. She deserves a better break. Her beauty alone won't sustain her popularity unless she has better vehicles.

• • •

AL ROGELL, Hollywood director, never had any hankering to make an independent production until he read "God and the Groceryman."

After that, he was willing to pawn his wife's jewels, sell the family flivver and go in debt the rest of his natural life if only Harold Bell Wright would consent to part with the film rights to his "best seller."

Mr. Wright, now in New York, where "God and the Groceryman" is being dramatized, listened to the impassioned Hollywoodian's plea, largely because Mr. Rogell had just finished "The Shepherd of the Hills," another Wright novel for First National. Furthermore, he granted an option on his novel. No author could do more.

• • •

WITH the tone in his voice of a preacher giving a sermon, Mr. Rogell outlined to me just why "God and the Groceryman" would be such a knockout as a motion picture. It is a sequel to "The Shepherd of the Hills," with the boy of the earlier novel a middle-aged man in the later story. Also, it is a discussion of life in the Ozarks against the 1905 date of "The Shepherd of the Hills."

While M. Rogell believes the release will be First National, he isn't worrying. That's the kind of a speculator he is.

• • •

I AM not claiming to be psychic—there are two many of these guys who prophesy the future in movies now—but I have a sneaking suspicion Norma Shearer is going to be very good in "The Traveling Saleslady."

It's the sort of comedy-drama in "Her Secretary", which she does especially well. She began work yesterday and her leading man is none other than the blonde Ralph Forbes.

They tell me out at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios that Mr. Forbes is one of their most promising leading men. He has been tied up for the best part of six months making "The Tide of '98."

HARTFORD ELEVEN IS DEFEATED 61 TO 6

Union County Team Chalks Up Another Victory at Recreation Park

Marysville, Nov. 5—The Marysville High School football team chalked up another victory Friday afternoon, in a lopsided game played on Recreation park, with Hartford High school. The final score was 61 to 6. Features of the game was the forward pass work of the local eleven.

Galloway, Marysville half, scored the first touchdown of the game in the first quarter, after Simpson and Wilcox made two long runs, which put the locals within scoring reach. A 38-yard pass and a short run, Galloway to Bump, resulted in the second touchdown for the locals. Another pass from Galloway to Bump and the score stood 21 to 0 in favor of Marysville, at the end of the first quarter. Line plunges by Wilcox and Bump and the latter scored the fourth tally of the game. The score at the end of the half was 28 to 0.

The first touchdown of the second half was scored by Bump, after a number of line plunges by himself and Galloway. The next score was scored in a similar manner by Simpson. A pass and an end run from Wilcox to Mackan added six more points. The score at the end of the third quarter was 49 to 0.

Two long passes, Wilcox to Lowe, made two more touchdowns which ended the greedy scoring of the locals. The third team was placed in charge for the remainder of the game. After three first downs the visitors were able to score.

The locals made 15 first downs to 12 for Hartford. Marysville completed six forward passes to one by Hartford. Every kick for the extra point by Marysville was good, Simpson making three of them.

The law creating a Municipal Court for Marion provides that the City Solicitor shall be Prosecuting Attorney of the Municipal Court. It also provides that the City Solicitor may designate such number of Assistant Prosecutors as the Council of the City of Marion may authorize. At the present time in Marion there is a City Solicitor and a Police Court Prosecutor. I have made a careful study of the requirements and the duties of these two positions. I believe I can properly handle all of the work of both of these offices and thereby save the City of Marion the cost of a Police Court Prosecutor. I am willing to do this even though it may require all of my time to properly look after the duties devolving upon both the City Solicitor and Police Court Prosecutor.

LEAD HIGH GRID TEAMS

RESTING upon the capable shoulders of each of the six lads above is the responsibility that goes with being football captain in their respective high schools in North Central Ohio.

The ages of the half-dozen captains vary between 17 and 19 years and each one is a star player on his respective eleven. Every one is a senior this year and is making plans for the future.

Capt. Gerald Logsdon of Upper Sandusky, who operates on the opposing forward wall from the fullback position expects to enter Notre Dame next fall. He will go to the home of the Fighting Irish with four years of high school football experience.

Expects To Coach

Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, N. C., will have a potential college football prospect next fall in Dwight "Little" Kersh, captain of this year's Galion High eleven. With his twin brother, "Big" Kersh, as his running mate at the other halfback position, the Galion captain this year is gaining a reputation in N. C. O. L. circles. He expects to take up athletic coaching as a profession.

Marysville High's success this season on the gridiron has been due in no small way to the play and leadership of Capt. Alfred Edwards, who smears plays and catches forward passes from his position at left end. Capt. Edwards has not yet definitely outlined his plans for next year. He expects to attend an eastern university.

Ohio University, Athens, is the college selection of Capt. Quentin McKee of Carey High School, who also takes care of the technical job of center on the Wyandot County team. McKee is widely known among schools in this section as a center of exceptional ability.

Played Every Minute

Without spending a single minute on the sidelines, while his team was playing for the past two seasons, Capt. Harry Switzer of Kenton High school, has built up an enviable reputation for himself as both a center and team leader. Switzer, now in his third year of football experience, is establishing a record that will stand with the best in his school's history.

Capt. Jack Makeever of Mt. Gilead High school has brought home many honors to his alma mater this year, though at the first of the season it was not expected to win a game because of ineligibility of regular players. Jack plays right halfback and is a reliable ball carrier. He expects to attend Lake Forest Academy.

KENTON VICTORIOUS OVER FOREST HIGH

Red and White Eleven Takes Long End of 44 to 6 Score

Kenton, Nov. 5—Displaying the best brand of football shown on the local field this year the Red and White gridders of Kenton High defeated Forest yesterday afternoon by a score of 44 to 6.

Snaring a forward pass in an open field during the first few minutes of play West raced for 35-yards placing the ball within four yards of the goal line. Lehman bucked it across for the upper Hardin County School's only counter of the game.

After getting possession of the ball in the first quarter the Kenton team clicked off touchddowns with clock-like regularity. Abandoning their usual straight football tactics the Kenton eleven opened up with forward passes, fakes and many trick plays that completely baffled their opponents.

Kenton repeatedly broke through Forest's line to block kicks. Touchdowns were scored by Arthur (4), Burker (2) and Allen Johnson. Johnson and Arthur both scored a point each after the touchdown.

Next Friday afternoon Wapakoneta high school will play on the local field. On Monday, Nov. 21 the locals will close the season at Ada.

NELSONVILLE GAME DECLARED FORFEIT

Action of School Authorities Gives Marysville Team Clean Slate

Marysville, Nov. 5—Marysville school authorities received a letter from the principal of the Nelsonville High school, Thursday, offering an apology for the use of an ineligible player in the game with Marysville, three weeks ago. The game ended in a tie 13 to 13 and is forfeited to the local school 1 to 0. This gives the locals a clean slate for the season, the Nelsonville team being the only eleven which it was not able to defeat.

The ineligible player was a colored end, ineligible because he had played longer than the allotted time for a high school athletic career. He was considered as one of the best athletes that has ever appeared on the local gridiron. The player played under an assumed name. The coach responsible for the use of the ineligible player by the Nelsonville team was asked to resign, which he did and all victories by the team have been forfeited.

ELEVENTH HOUR DRIVES START

Stage Set at Kenton for History-Making Election Contest

Kenton, Nov. 5—With party meetings and confabss now a matter of history and with political broadcasting their eleventh hour campaign statements, the stage is set for one of the most interesting elections in the history of the city.

Despite the absence of any outstanding campaign gatherings or demonstrations, citizens apparently are taking more than a passing interest in the forthcoming election and Hardin County Election Board members are predicting a better than average vote.

In addition to electing municipal, school board and township officials, voters will be asked to act on two state proposals, two school bond issues, city school levy and two village levies.

Probably the greatest interest locally centers in the three-cornered mayoralty race between H. E. Herren, present Republican incumbent, W. J. Ochs, banker and former mayor, heading the Democratic ticket, and Frederick S. Butler, Independent. Throughout the campaign the Independent leader and his followers have remained relatively quiet while the two major parties' campaign has not gone beyond the customary claims, charges, counter charges and denials, contained in printed statements.

The city school board race is also coming in for its share of interest with six independent candidates—J. W. Ditman, E. H. Sorgen, J. E. Gasson, William O. Smith, Oscar Shillings and Millard L. Heath—in the field. In keeping with a policy inaugurated 20 years ago to keep the board of education out of politics, the two major parties have endorsed the first three candidates.

MARY GARDEN TO SING ON WEAF BILL

Be Heard on Monday

National and international notables, including Mary Garden and John Charles Thomas, will be heard in three distinct varieties of broadcast entertainment in the "Family Party" radio hour, to be inaugurated by WEAF and the red network at 9:30 o'clock Monday, November 7, over a network of twenty-eight stations—the biggest hook-up yet employed for any regular radio series.

The hour will be divided into three periods of twenty minutes each, in order to present three separate types of program—symphonic music of the semi-classical kind, popular music and humor. By this arrangement the sponsors of the hour hope to appeal to the taste of all groups of the radio audience. The best artists and organizations in the three respective fields will be utilized.

The first period in each Monday night's program will be devoted to popular classics. Mary Garden will be among the first as well as John Charles Thomas, the internationally-known grand opera and concert star.

The second period will be devoted to humor, or vaudeville—a sort of brisk "Honk-Honk Revue," with such masters of ceremony as Raymond Hitchcock, Willie Collier, Nora Bayes, "Judge" Walter C. Kelley, Weber and Fields, and others.

The third period, devoted to popular music, will be presented by the famous Goldman band, with guest conductors including Edwin Franko Goldman himself, Patrick Conway and other band leaders.

Ohio Buckeyes May Be Wrong Diet For Tigers

FOOTBALL NAME OF EAST SUSPENDED BY THIN THREAD

Princeton Needs Victory Over Ohio To Save Reputation

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5—The football prestige of the entire east and possibly the official head of a leading coach were believed to be hanging on a Gossamer thread this afternoon as a result of the first meeting of Princeton and Ohio State, respective representatives of the defunct Big Three and flourishing Big Ten, before a packed "house" at Palmer Stadium. Undefeated in five games to date, Princeton could blow the works, as far as the east was concerned, by losing to the Buckeyes, since the latter have been so inconsiderate as to come up for this game behind two defeats in the west.

Tigers Need Victory

This fact has left Princeton no alternative but to beat Ohio State or admit that, as a leading contender of the east, it couldn't no what Michigan and Northwestern, a couple of second runners out beyond were able to do with great, east and refinement. Such an admission would do the east in general almost no good at all.

On the other side of the fence it has been broadly hinted in these parts for upward of a week that Dr. John Wilce, storm center of Buckeye football this season, must win this one for Ohio State or consider his job forfeited. If that is true, it should be goodgood Buckeye psychology, for the team now is understood to be for Wilce to a man and the possible loss of his position would give it something additional to fight for.

As a matter of fact, all the psychology of the situation is riding with Ohio, since Princeton can gain little by winning and lose plenty by losing. In addition, the Tigers' early schedule could have been tougher without doing any particular harm on the rubbing table. It might be, in fact, that the team has come up to this game, bravely scheduled as a substitute for the annual Harvard contest, without the proper amount of competition.

No one can say that about the Buckeyes. They got just a bit too much for their own health in the early season but the team has started to register now, and behind the impetus of the Chicago victory, it may have arrived, sight unseen. Today's game will tell that story.

It will have to be a good Ohio State team to beat Princeton as only good teams seem able to beat Princeton even when the Tiger's reasonably bad, which is not often. According to the general idea down here, the Tiger this year is far from bad. It has a green line and something of a new backfield but men like Wittmer and Miles have been stand-out players in every game. It apparently is a team with a sound passing and running attack, without a sound defense, particularly against passes.

This is significant in view of the fact that the Buckeyes have done a lot of successful passing this year to Bell and others. They also have the running game of Marek and Eby to make their passing stand up.

Altogether, the general tendency to pick Princeton for a comfortable victory seems completely out of focus, particularly in view of the fact that Ohio has been good enough to score two touchdowns on Town, Northwestern and Chicago. A much better guess would seem to call for even money on the pair of them, for it should be a great game and a very close one.

CALLAHAN LOSES SHUFFLE IN CALIFORNIA BOUT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 5—Shuffle Callahan, Chicago middleweight, was knocked out in six rounds here last night by Mike Hector, former middleweight champion of the Navy. Flash Hastings, North Platte, Nebr., boxer, beat Dick Lapan, Los Angeles, in the six-round special event.

Red and Black Gridders Face Mansfield At Fairgrounds Today

FOLLOWERS of the Red and Black look to these gridiron warriors of the Harding High School to carry the colors flying in the annual clash with the Big Red of Mansfield at the fairgrounds this afternoon. The majority of these will likely get the call from Coach Bohyer as the whistle blows.

That the clash at the fairgrounds this afternoon will be the best game of the year for the Red and Black is beyond a doubt. The game will decide whether or not the Harding team is to stay in the running for North Central Ohio League honors, which now are split even between Mansfield and Shelby.

Until last Saturday Harding was also in the unbeaten column but Bucyrus threw a wrench in the cogs and wrecked the Red and Black machine to the tune of 12 to 0. It was the first game the locals had lost this season and the second game in which they had been scored upon. Ashland succeeded, two weeks before, in crossing the Harding line for one marker.

The record book shows Harding with 58 points and its opponent with 18, but the last 12 to be checked up against the Red and Black were costly. The shutouts handed Upper Sandusky, Galion and Findlay can't erase the black mark checked against the team last Saturday; for, unless there is a complete overturning of the dope bucket the Red and Black is out of the league race.

Although Mansfield has an impressive record and the Red and Black enters the game slightly the under dog the team will be fighting like fury to redeem the Bucyrus defeat.

Reading from left to right the players pictured above are: Lower row; Kramer, captain and right guard; McAninch, left halfback; Evans, center; Lowe, quarterback; Garrett, right halfback. Upper row: Lewis, left end; Henriksen, right end; Rieff, left tackle; Stafford, fullback; and Smith, right tackle.

Charles Schoenlaub on Ohio State Soccer Team

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Nov. 5—Charles Malcolm Schoenlaub, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Schoenlaub, 8. Prospect-st, Marion, was a member of the Ohio State soccer team which left Thursday night for Princeton, N. J., where it meets the Princeton University squad Saturday morning.

The soccer squad departed on the same special train with the Buckeye football team which will battle the Princeton grid team Saturday afternoon. It is the first out-of-town trip to be taken by the Ohio State soccer squad which was organized this fall.

Schoenlaub plays left fullback on the team. He has been practicing daily with the rest of the squad to be in trim for the first encounter on foreign fields. The Marion youth is a senior at the university, enrolled in the College of Engineering. He is affiliated with the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

WET FIELD FAVORS WASHINGTON U. GRIDDERS

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 5—Prospects of a soggy field loomed today for the Stanford-Washington football game here. A wet field will aid the hefty husky aggregation, according to experts, while it will harm the fleet backfield men of the Warner squad.

BURY HATCHET

Quakers and Penn Resume Relations After 22 Years

Philadelphia, Nov. 5—Harvard and Penn are friends again. After a lapse of more than two decades the crimson and the red and blue will bury the football hatchet here this afternoon when they meet on Franklin field before an anticipated crowd of nearly 80,000.

It was twenty-two years ago, to be exact, that the coherts of the Quakers and John Harvard decided that the time had arrived for them to cease to slide down one another's cellar door.

Walter Hagen, Turnesa Are Finalists in Professional Golf Tournament

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, Dallas, Tex., Nov. 5—Joseph Turnesa, a slender, almost frail Italian youth, pro at the Elmsford Country Club, Elmsford, N. Y., went out on this course today to try to beat Walter Hagen of Pasadena, Florida, unattached, in the finals of the tenth annual National Professional Golfers Association championship tournament. In so doing, he essayed a task that no one has been able to perform during the last three years, in each of which the mighty "Haig" has won the title. They are booked for 36 holes.

Somehow or other, the husky haired youngster didn't seem to take much stock in the gossip going on among the gallery as the two stars prepared to tee off, gossip that he was in for a sound licking and that no one would have a chance against the already four-time champion. And Turnesa had some grounds for ignoring the slighting remarks that he couldn't help but overhear in the crowd regarding his chances.

It was only yesterday that Young Joe wound up his semi-final match with old John Golden of Paterson, N. J., on the thirtieth green and then took advantage of his chance to get a slant at the style of his next opponent, who was far less fortunate and less decisive in his triumph.

For seven holes Turnesa followed Hagen and Al Espinosa of Glencoe, Ills. He watched them put up the tightest fight ever fought in a golf match that really meant something in this sector. He saw Hagen take sixes and sevens to negotiate holes. He saw the champion swing 39 times to complete nine holes. And it was Turnesa, who earlier in the day had turned in a snappy par 71 to furnish the galleries with the real sparkling golf of the day.

The betting men declared that Hagen had a cinch when he started out with Espinosa Friday and that Turnesa should be a slight favorite over Golden but he probably would have a lot of trouble winning. The results were exactly to the contrary. Joe finished his man 7 and 6. The "Haig" won one up on the thirty-seventh green after one of their greatest battles of his long career on the links. He literally won by the skin of his teeth and he was quite fortunate not to be beaten.

TICKET SCALPERS DO BIG BUSINESS AS CROWD GATHERS

Notre Dame Stadium Sees Biggest Crowd in Its History

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 5—Tickets were being scalped at unheard of prices today as game time drew near for the classic struggle between Minnesota's powerful gridiron machine and Knute Rockne's undefeated Irish of Notre Dame.

What is expected to be the greatest crowd ever to jam its way into historic old Cartier Field began to assemble early. The weather was fair, but a brisk chilliness in the air kept the crowds on the move. The field was dry and fast.

Each team ran through a brief signal drill before the starting gun sounded. Neither squad has lost a game this season and both entered the epic contest with an eye on the national title.

On the basis of past performances on the part of either team, it will be a battle between Joesting, the pile-driving back, Almquist and Nydahl of the Gophers and Flanagan, Collins, Riley, et al for Notre Dame. All the stars are not in the starting lineup.

Scott Drops Before Dane

Great Dane Puts Out British Champion in Two Minutes, 2 Seconds in Madison Square Garden Last Night

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—A flock of right hand punches deposited with deadly effect on the person of Phil Scott by the Great Dane, Kaare Hansen, had swept the British Isles right out of the heavyweight eliminations today. It took but two minutes and 25 seconds last night at Madison Square Garden to perform the painful operation.

Like his more or less illustrious predecessor, Joe Beckett, Scott spent most of the time on the floor. Knocked down by a right before he could feel out his man, Scott visited the canvas seven times before Referee Louis Magnain called a halt with the English champion curled up on the floor for a long nap.

Foul Punch

Hansen's victory was marred by a foul punch—a right to the groin which sent Scott down for the fourth time. It was a blow from which the Briton never recovered although he kept coming up from the floor as long as his legs would support him.

The referee seemed to hesitate as Scott lay writhing on the floor but then took up the count and thus denied the fallen fighter's mute appeal.

After that trip to the canvas, Scott had nothing left but the instinct to rise. Each time after he got up he stood helpless as the Scandinavian giant swung his lethal right. Scott was a balmy wreck after the fifth knockdown—too far gone to take his full counts. A right under the heart finally curled him up in the center of the ring.

He was completely out when dragged to his corner but soon recovered.

Never Started

Scott never got started last night. He jabbed lightly with his left, put a long, soft right to the head and missed another just before Hansen hooked a left to the head that started the knockdown session.

Knute, always a great front runner, wasted no bullets.

It was one of his good nights. Possibly his handlers had convinced that Scott was a mere preliminary for Knute showed absolutely no of the British champion.

Hansen's superior reach was [illegible] foe. Also Hansen outweighed 267 1-2 to 195 1-4.

Had Scott won last night—and was a 3 to 1 favorite—he would [illegible] carted again at Garden next [illegible] As it is he probably will sail for [illegible] soon leaving Tom Heeney to [illegible] the British cause in the heavyweight tournament. Tom is a New Zealander.

The semi-final between Leo Lom[illegible] of Aberdeen, Washington, and [illegible] Okun, of the East Side, was the [illegible] de resistance of the card.

Okun Goes Out

This was supposed to have a [illegible] heavyweight elimination and Lom[illegible] weighing 188¾ against Okun's 17[illegible] thoroughly eliminated the East Si[illegible] and had him on the verge of a kn[illegible] out as early as the fourth round.

Martin Burke, 183½, won the [illegible] ten-rounder from Billy Vidabeck, 177[illegible]

In the first four-round preliminar[illegible] Eddy Guida, 132½, knocked out Ni[illegible] Pillas, same weight, in the first round and Canada Lee, 140, drew with [illegible] Delgado in the second four.

The paid attendance of about 10,0[illegible] yielded gross receipts of approximate[illegible] $37,000.

The greatest enthusiasm shown d[illegible] ing the evening was provoked by t[illegible] entrance of Jack Dempsey about [illegible] o'clock. Dempsey was escorted to h[illegible] ringside chair by Tex Rickard, J[illegible] Flynn and Arthur F. Driscoll of t[illegible] legal battery and took a seat alongsi[illegible] Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

The galleryites wouldn't let J[illegible] Humphries introduce the principals i[illegible] the main event until Dempsey got in[illegible] the ring and took a bow that provoke[illegible] a noisy demonstration.

Four Big Ten Teams Play Outside Conference Today

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—All ten teams of the Western Conference, scattered over the eastern half of the United States, will indulge today in the bone-cracking pastime of football. But only three of these battles—and they should be all of that—will have any bearing on the "lost-and-found" columns of the Big Ten standings.

These conference games, ranked according to their importance, are: Illinois-Iowa at Iowa City; Michigan-Chicago at Stagg Field, and Northwestern-Purdue at Lafayette.

Four Play Outside

That leaves four Big Ten teams playing non-conference foes. In the case of Minnesota and Ohio State, great emphasis should be placed on the word "foes." The Gophers take on Knute Rockne's Irish at Notre Dame while the Buckeyes try to knot the Tiger's tail at Princeton.

Wisconsin and Indiana, the other two conference members, are entertaining at home, the former against Grinnell and the latter against Michigan State.

Iowa, thus far the under-dog of the Big Ten, has a golden opportunity to spring the surprise of the day by knocking off Bob Zuppke's cocky and undefeated Illini. That the down-staters are a bit "cocky," is intimated in Zuppke's warning to his men that they stand an excellent chance of being defeated.

At present Illinois and Minnesota are tied for the conference leadership, neither having lost a game. While it would be a grand upset to see the Hawkeyes swamp Zuppke's fleet machine, only the most optimistic Iowa rooters predict any such result.

Michigan Should Win

The Michigan-Chicago affair, on the basis of a sanguinary past, should be one of the toughest battles of the day. It is tradition that either team cherishes this victory almost ahead of the Big Ten championship. Michigan, with Louis Gilbert, the punting ace, back in the lineup, is confident of victory.

The Wolverines were beaten last Saturday for the first time this season, by Illinois. On the same day Stagg's Maroons dropped their first conference tilt to Ohio State. Both are on edge today for a victory and the game should be "hot."

The Northwestern-Purdue struggle at Lafayette is just another football game.

Peter's Adventures

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE S. VINCENT

FRIENDLY MRS. FLITTERMOUSE

...closely at the ... and grew ...

...great deal about ... "When one fellow ... he must be a ... which reminds me, ... who you are." ... giggled. ... quite smart you ... not a fellow ... mouse, and—"

... "I didn't know ... certainly never ... anything at all." ... "Besides, you in- ... wonder Batt flew ... made again I shall ... hesitated." ... replied the Boy, ... quite forget his ... to tell me that ... that you are a Bat ... If you don't look ...

"Indeed, and why not. I should like to know?" Mrs. Flittermouse's voice sounded cross.

"Well, you are too small, for one thing," replied the Boy.

"That's because you see me at my worst. I never make much of an appearance when I am on the ground. I have all I can do to walk without thinking of how I look. Wait until I spread out a little."

Just then a shaft of moonlight came slanting through the trees and fell full on Mrs. Flittermouse, and Peter scarcely heard her last words, so interested was he in studying his companion.

"I can guess how you got the last half of your name," chuckled the Boy. "You do look like a mouse, that's a fact. Your eyes are as bright and your nose as pointed. But, on the other hand, your tail is not nearly as long. In fact, 'tis scarcely a tail at all; and your ears are big, while Mouse's are tiny. Gracious! What is that you wear on your nose? A ruffle? No mouse I ever saw wore anything like it!"

"'Tis a fold of skin, my boy, but 'tis all the better to smell with," squeaked Mrs. Flittermouse, and grinned at Peter, showing a whole mouthful of sharp teeth as white as snow.

Do children more boldly tell the truth, now? And is it because they are not so much afraid?

Man who thinks the world owes him a living is mad at the world. For that reason, he doesn't realize on his notion.

Better Grade of Dividend Paying Railroad Stocks Forges Ahead

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York, Nov. 5—Industrial stocks were under moderate selling pressure in the final half session of the week, owing to week-end profit-taking and short-selling. The proximity of the Tuesday holiday was also cited as an important reason for "lightening the load" of speculative holdings at this time.

Some encouragement for the bulls was contained in the weekly business reviews, which reported that the coming of colder weather has stimulated retail sales of fall and winter garments, as well as winter implements of various kinds. The weather has also favored the gathering in of the crops and ginning of cotton, and the agricultural districts will have funds available for purchase of necessary commodities.

Buy Rail Shares

Good buying was in evidence in the better grade of dividend-paying railroad bonds, which forged ahead under the lead of Atchison, Southern Railway, Frisco common, Chicago Northwestern, Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Norfolk & Western, Reading and New York Central. The speculative "merger rails" were also in demand, with Erie at 62½.

American Can reached a new high at 68¾, but the stock encountered heavy profit-taking around 68 and was unable to carry its advance beyond that point in the first hour. Speculative moves in the specialties were abandoned in favor of the railroad stocks in the second hour, and the coppers and oils were thrown overboard by the so-called small traders in their haste to climb on the railroad share band wagon.

Chicago, Nov. 5 — Recognition of bearish factors in the situation served to weaken the wheat market here yesterday and sharp declines in prices were registered. Most of the depressing news came from Canada, the abundance of the yield up there being emphasized in private estimates while some advices expressed belief that movement would be better when the press of farm work subsided.

Little of interest transpired in the corn market. An easy tone prevailed most of the day, this apparently being a reflection of the break in wheat. Volume of trade was again small, due to lack of incentive for active trading on either side. Oats reacted with other grains, while rye market was irregular.

Selling Is Free

Early steadiness of the wheat market was of limited duration. Several of the leading houses sold wheat freely and the decline uncovered numerous stop-loss orders, adding to the weakness. Limited buying power was disclosed and it appeared as though most of the support came from shorts.

The Winnipeg market was weak, possibly reflecting the bearish private crop estimates.

The Liverpool market was unsettled, helped on the one hand by the recent steadiness of the Buenos Aires and Winnipeg markets, and otherwise affected by cheap offerings of new Argentine wheat.

Corn Market Quiet

Corn futures were firm at the outset on a little local buying, but reacted when wheat turned. Scattered selling kept prices a little below the previous close. Buying incentive was lacking and traders generally are waiting for developments in the situation. Weather over the belt was unsettled. Country offerings are moderate with a fair movement now on.

Country reports indicate that new corn is generally of good quality. Shipping demand light. Included in the Argentine shipments this week were 272,000 bushels of corn to the United States and 192,000 bushels to Canada.

Oats trade was light with market firm early and easier later in sympathy with other grains. Some buying credited to Northwest. Much of the business was in way of changing from near to deferred deliveries. Receipts small.

Rye trade was slow and featureless. No fresh export business was reported.

TOLEDO CLOSE

Toledo, Nov. 5—Toledo cash grain close:

Wheat—No. 2 red, 1.31@1.33.
Corn—No. 3 yellow, 87@88.
Oats—No. 2 white, 54@55.

COFFEE MARKET

New York, Nov. 5—The opening of the coffee futures market was steady today. December opened at 13.52, down 6 and March 13.47, down 4.

Star Finds Industry Prepared For Normal Good Business Here!

This organization several weeks ago made a searching investigation of business conditions in Marion. We determined upon analysis that conditions were and are fundamentally good and that no reason existed for pessimism. Last Saturday we published a full page article entitled "Marion Has Hit Its Stride" in which we announced our findings and told of a new half-million dollar theatre to be built here by outside capital.

On the following Monday in an 8-column streamer headline, the Marion Star, as a result of its own investigation among industries, proclaimed NORMAL BUSINESS CONDITIONS and in interviews with leading business firms revealed that a general spirit of optimism prevails throughout the city. On the same page the Star published the story of the new half-million dollar theatre on W. Center street. Elsewhere in the Star of last Monday other news reports clearly indicated the new spirit that has taken hold of Marion business.

In other words, practically every statement of optimism made in our advertisement of the preceding Saturday was supported editorially by the Star in its Monday issue.

Today every Marion citizen can rightly feel optimistic over the new spirit. Business is normal, and with the right kind of initiative and courage back of it, business will get better.

Thirty three thousand citizens speaking enthusiastically of their city and believing in its future, aiding that future by word and act, planning ahead and working toward the greater goal, can accomplish anything they set out to achieve. YOU, as a citizen of Marion, owe this community your loyalty and your support, and with a new year ready to open new opportunities TODAY is the right time to start boosting.

Cities grow great according to their citizen-strength and courage. Upon each of the 33,000 citizens in Marion there is a moral responsibility today —the responsibility of aiding in the development of civic, social and industrial enterprise. To the business already here a genuine loyalty is required; to new business the spirit of cooperation should extend.

TODAY, in one fashion or another, express your loyalty to Marion. Your future is here, and that future is wide or narrow to the extent that YOU make it.

Marion Has Hit Its Stride.

ACT TODAY ON THIS OPPORTUNITY!
